LOOK WHO'S WINNING NOW

Jon Johnstone and Joe Ballard give each other a victory hug while celebrating the win against Montrose on September 12 in front of the largest crowd ever. In the last seconds of the game, Anthony Turner received the ball from Ryan Brady to score what would end Montrose's hopes of tying for the record of most regular season wins. The jubilant crowd swarmed onto the field to celebrate.

PULL!

The J.V. and freshman football players tugged their way to a victory over the varsity team in the season's first pep rally. A renewed sense of school spirit filled the gym as fans anticipated the upcoming season.

Students in Art for You work on their black and white designs, a requirement for the class. Art gives students the opportunity to express their feelings. More than meets the eye

Student Life

Many unnoticed things go on in students' lives. Many students watched the graduation ceremony to foresee their own futures. Some people viewed the Showboat spectacle, while others discovered their own summer adventures. Most of the people of Chesaning witnessed a tornado and focused on other world news. Every student also has a different perspective on Homecoming and Spirit Week. It is always quite a sight to observe what some people will pull out to wear, just to be noticed. No matter what student you inspect, there is More than meets the eye.

PLAYING THE FIELD

The CHS Marching Band entertains the crowd during the homecoming game under the direction of Mr. Taton. At home games, the band usually performs their show at halftime, but during homecoming, they had to do it before the game.

SHE'LL BE COMING DOWN THE RIVER. The Shiawassee Queen made its 56th voyage down the river a little later than expected this past July. Ironically, this year's Showboat theme was "April Showers" but the rain did not stop audiences from pouring into the stadium.

Three's ~~a Crowd~~ Allowed

For the first time ever, three star acts appeared on the Showboat, tripling the audience's pleasure.

Audiences showed up in bunches to watch the fifty-sixth annual Showboat, which for the first time featured three "star" attractions : singers Frankie Valley and BJ Thomas and comedian David Brenner.

On Monday evening the threat of rain almost ruined opening night, but the rain slowed and the show began at about 9 p.m. This caused a very rare and beautiful sight as the Showboat's trip down the river was during night time hours for the first time in many years.

The order of the show had to be rearranged so that the "biggest" of the main acts, Frankie Valley and the Four Seasons, were sure to perform. As the rain subsided, all main acts did get to perform.

The Bohaty Dancers opened the show each night with their usual polished routine. Singer B.J. Thomas brought back memories of the 70's with such hits as "Hooked on a Feeling." David Brenner left with a crowd full of sideache sufferers as he was funny from begining to end. But the crowd really went wild when Frankie Valley sang hit after hit. From "Walk Like a Man" to "Sherry Baby," it seemed the audience knew the lyrics to every song.

The Chesaning School system also had a big part in the Showboat week as did the parents of some of their students. The music and sports boosters of the area ran the concession stands, and the Forensic team sold T-shirts.

Three acts proved that three isn't alway a crowd, but it certainly draws one !

ONE OF A KIND. David Brenner charmed the audience when he commented to the smallness of Chesaning in his routine. The audience laughed as he spoke of th "one" Chinese restaraunt where he met the "one" cop.

A HARD ACT TO FOLLOW. Mr. Murdoch has entertained Showboat audiences for 22 years now. He prefers to sing old Dixieland songs, and this year, he performed "I Got a Gal From Kalamazoo," which he took from his CAPA dinner theatre last spring.

Hi Ho, Hi Ho To the Game We Go

Even though the jug was at stake, speedball night was all fun and games.

With all hope lost, the seniors gathered to hear Mr. Bogar's announcement of the Spirit Jug winner at the homecoming dance. "The juniors were already celebrating because they believed they had won the jug," said Michele Bates. To the juniors' dismay and the seniors' glee, Mr. Bogar announced the seniors had squeaked out a victory. If the juniors had had two more students attend the dance, they would have been victorious. Now that's close! "After Mr. Bogar made the announcement the seniors all went crazy. We had a huge senior dance on the dance floor," added Michele.

The week's activities began Monday with Flood Day as students poured into the school ready for the great flood. Rain gear, umbrellas and rolled up pant legs brought a victory to the seniors who had a whopping 47.9 percent participation.

The weather was perfect for the evening speedball game. The freshman players were in trouble because they only had 8 players to start with. The sophomore girls displayed an act of good sportsmanship by voluntarily reducing their players to make it a fair match. Denique Greenfelder, who was on the freshman team admitted, "I think they shouldn't have given us the same chance because we wouldn't have done that for them." The sophomores' generosity didn't stop them from crushing the freshmen 17 to 3. The seniors beat the juniors 8 to 2.

Wednesday was a time warp as people gathered their favorite retro outfits for the 70's day. People rushed to Goodwill or dug through their parents' old clothes to find the perfect outfit. Tuesday night a group of senior girls spent the night at Angie Fielbrandt's house to get ready for the big event. "We sat in a line and put curlers in each other's hair," said Angie. The girls used about 50 curlers on each of their heads.

Theme day was magical as the student body came to life as the characters from their class Disney movie. Seniors came as people from Cinderella's ball. Juniors came ready to plunge "Under the Sea" in scuba gear and innertubes. The sophomores came in with a roar as they dressed up as characters from "The Lion King."

Friday everyone caught the spirit with Orange and Black Day. The juniors came out on top of this one with 65.5 percent of their class dressing up.

For the lunch time and pep assembly games participants had to have big appetites as the theme seemed to be food for thought. Players were treated to such things as apples and donuts off strings, and mashed potatoes with chocolate syrup on them. Jon Johnstone said the chocolatey potatoes weren't too tasty, so he spit out each mouthful as he searched for the "surprise." Jon finally did find the surprise, which was a malted milk ball.

Another game involved making a sandwich with pickles, bologna, cheese, and peanut butter. Each player raced to the end of the gym and added one of the ingredients.

All of the fans waited in anticipation for the crowning moment.

The final runner had to eat the sandwich. "I didn't think it would be that bad, but the mixture of the ingredients of the sandwich was the hardest and grossest thing I've ever had to eat," Mandy Odenbaugh said. "In the middle, when I was almost done, I thought that it was all going to come back up. I put my hand over my mouth and everyone backed away. As soon as I was done, I ran to the bathroom and gargled!"

Friday afternoon brought crowds to enjoy the annual parade where the only mishap was a pair of missing pants. Molly Stover, a member of the marching band, ran into a little problem when she lost her pants to her uniform. "I was getting ready for the homecoming parade and I needed my marching band pants to make the ensemble complete. I started looking for my pants but I couldn't find them anywhere. I was going nuts and my mom even helped. I finally decided to look at the school to see what they had. They were all huge!" exclaimed Molly. "I could wear the smallest pair, and they would still go past my chin. I could fit both of my legs in one pant leg. I finally picked the smallest pair and pinned them up. It wasn't all bad though," resolved Molly, "I could squat better!"

The game began and the fighting Indians fought hard the whole first half, but at half time they were behind the St. John's Redwings 6 to 7. The band entertained the crowd with Disney themes as the court members and their parents walked across the field. Tillie Railling and Jon Johnstone were crowned homecoming king and queen. The football team continued to fight, but were defeated 14 to 13.

For the first time ever, the homecoming dance was moved to Saturday night instead of Friday night to allow more time for the event. The move got good reviews as more people attended the semi-formal dance than in past years. "I think more people came to the dance because it was on Saturday. There was more time this way," said Tillie Railling.

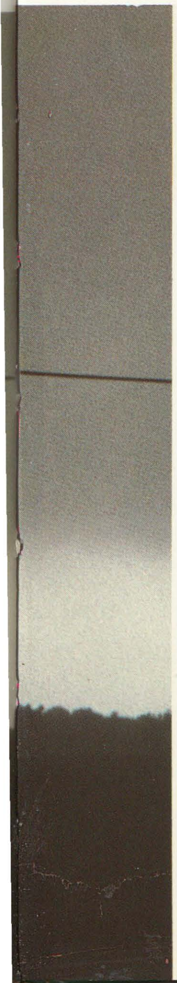
IT'S A TWISTER! The dark funnel clouds warned many people that the tornado was coming. "When I heard the sirens, I knew this wasn't just a 'little' storm," said Betsie Berg.



We're Not in Kansas Anymore!

When people emerged from their basements on July 2, they were surprised by the drastic changes in their community.

Visions of Dorothy, Toto, and the Wicked Witch danced in many peoples' heads on July 2 after a tornado blew through town. Kelly Michaelis, who lives in the path the tornado took said, "When we came up, I looked out the picture window and our entire back deck was gone."

When Ryan Hoerner went upstairs he found that there was a tree on his house. Janelle Wilhelm, who was in Owosso at the time of the tornado, said, "I got home and I saw roofs lying around!"

"The tornado picked up my neighbor's car right out of his driveway and put it in a field behind his house," said Alon McConnell. "The roof of his car was torn off, and he had just gotten his car that day!"

Mr. Murdoch, who was at a meeting during the tornado, went home to see what trees he had lost. When he got there none of his trees were gone but about a third of his house had been hit. "Fortunately it was the only house in the neighborhood that didn't have anybody in it," he said. He and his wife and son lived in a trailer until November while their home was being repaired. The debris from the clean up was overwhelming, according to Mr. Murdoch. "We filled three dumpsters on the first day."

Several students were curious as to what the tornado looked like and decided to stay outside and watch. Tyler Frelitz decided to seek shelter only after a chunk of hail hit him in the shoulder. "I could have used the hail for an ice cube!"

Joe Escamilla, who was at his uncle's house on Line Street, went inside after a close encounter with a garbage can which almost hit him in the head. Amazingly enough a

BLOW THE ROOF DOWN. The Bentley Street apartment complex had the roof and some siding blown off in the tornado. "My family and I hid in the bathroom," says Zara Maldonado. "When I looked out, there was siding and wood all over the lawn."

bage can was spiked on the flag pole at Line Street School.

Michelle Zoellner found the perfect spot to take shelter from the storm. "I grabbed three couch cushions, the cat, the bird, and a loaf of banana bread I had just baked and hid in the bathtub," she admitted.

Anne Birchmeier, who was leaving the next day to go on an overseas trip said, "I took my 80 pound suitcase down in the basement with me so I could still go the next day if my house blew away."

Michelle Garant saw the tornado when she was leaving work at the Brass Bell. Scott Kennicott said, "The weird thing is I saw a picture in the paper afterwards of a funnel cloud at the corner of M-52 and M-57. I work at McDonalds and I never saw a thing!"

The night of the tornado TV 12's news anchor Bill Harris had to use Miss VanLoon's phone because hers was the only one that worked in the area. The next morning the Channel 12 news crew came around and asked her if they could interview her because she was home during the tornado. They originally only said that they would use it for the noon news but they ended up using it for a commercial for J. R. Kerteck's live doppler radar. They asked her if she had listened to the 12 News weather before the storm. She said, "As a matter of fact I did and it was very helpful to know because I went out and moved my car back about 10 minutes before the storm. Because of that I didn't get a scratch on it."

The community pulled together to clean up the city as fast as possible, and in fact, their efforts allowed the Riverside Pops concert to go on as scheduled the day after the tornado.

Always and Forever

Blueberry chicken, hypnosis, sumo wrestling and karaoke made prom '97 unforgettable.

Chicken with blueberries on it. Who would have thought that the most anticipated event of the spring would have such a memorable dinner? Prom 1997 took place at the Kellogg Center with the theme being "Always and Forever." Rachel Hollenback explained, "I remember those nasty blueberries on my chicken. What would possess someone to put fruit on meat?"

After about a half hour of dancing, a hypnotist was brought out to entertain the crowd. As everyone gathered around to see what was going on, he selected Chris Zoellner, Jenny Fowler, Matt Kisser, and Craig Gruner to help him with his act. He made them conduct an invisible orchestra, dance like ballerinas, go on a fishing trip, and drive a new convertible. He also took them back in time to when they were four years old. He bought them ice cream and took them to a petting zoo. Chris Zoellner, in an innocent childlike voice said that he had "banana flavored ice cream" and a "pet ducky." After it was all over, Chris had no idea what had happened . . . he couldn't remember a thing! As some of his friends filled him in on what had just happened, he was amazed at the things he had done. Everyone was invited back to Cheasaning for post-prom. Sumo wrestling, a velcro wall, a bungee run, and an obstacle course were some of the activities for the students to do. Sumo wrestling and the obstacle course were the favorites. One of the most amusing matches for sumo wrestling was between Betsie Berg and her mom Sherri. "I laughed so hard because Sherri is usually so well-dressed and proper," said Karlye Gross. "And to see her in that sumo outfit was hilarious."

For most people, Prom 1997 will be remembered always and forever. For those who were hypnotized, however, it will always and "for never" be remembered.

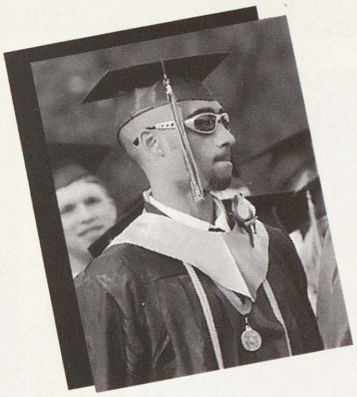
WORDS OF WISDOM. James Kuhl's speech took a look at the different aspects of life combining famous quotes with his own. Such as, "I've found wisdom on T.V. Two words: Doogie Howser," or "All you have to fear is fear itself." "Life is like a box of chocolates, you never know what you're going to get." And "what do you give the luckiest class on the face of earth? All they really need is love before it's time for them to fly" James also included that what he most remembers about that day is walking in and out of the ceremony with his best friend.



Time For Them To Fly.....

With a flip of their tassels and a toss of their caps, the seniors were ready to fly.

The forecast for the evening of May 30th predicted rain. The Seniors agreed on having their ceremony outside no matter what. Matthew Kisser's mother passed away the day before he walked down the aisle with his classmates. Although her passing was disheartening, she told Matt that she would keep the rain away. Amazingly, it didn't rain after all.

"The thing I most remember about that day was feeling very emotional," said Brock Ketterman.

Some of the emotion was caused by the speakers' touching speeches, other people were just sad to say good-bye.

The Seniors chose Mr. Baese as their class speaker. The class President, Jeff Hattendorf spoke along with classmates James Kuhl and Ryann Moore who all gave unforgettable messages.

James played a practical joke on Mrs. Hahnenberg because she made a big deal about him not forgetting his speech. She told him to give her a copy of his speech. James said, "Mrs. Hahnenberg was explaining to me how the speeches were stolen and she didn't know what to do. With a worried look on my face, I told her I hadn't brought a copy of mine. She got all upset until I relieved her by telling her it was a joke and that I did have an extra copy with me."

Ryann said, "The thing I remembered most during my speech was when I turned to look at my class. I first saw Stacy Szappan sitting at the end of the row. She looked like she might have been crying and it choked me up."

The class of 1997 will surely be one not forgotten. It was just Time For "Them" To Fly.

Summer Days Drifted Away

Indian summers never seem to last long enough, but students still found time for their favorite activities.

School's out for the summer and students are happy to get away from homework for awhile. For some it's just not enough to get out of the school building, they prefer getting out of the town, the state, and in some cases, the country!

Kortni Christian spent nearly her whole summer working at Lake Ann Baptist Camp. She worked 12 hours a day, but still had time for fun. One of her most memorable times there was when she rode in a boat for the first time. According to Kortni, "somebody was tubing and when they got back in the boat they sat on my stuff and all of it got wet!!"

Melissa Baese spent six weeks in Vermont at a music camp. She was quick to talk about where she stayed. "I had my own hotel room. I had a king-size bed, cable, and a phone. We also had our own laundry service that did our laundry once a week and folded it." When she wasn't basking in the luxury, Melissa was busy practicing for four hours a day.

A few students chose to travel out of the country. Kristy Umstead ventured over seas to England for two weeks to visit her British aunt, American uncle, and five Russian cousins. "I got to drive the Fiat!" recalled Kristy. "Everyone thinks it'd be weird driving on the left side of the road but really it's not because the steering wheel is on the wrong side, too!"

For some, staying close to home had its rewards as well. Mark James spent much of his summer playing golf every day. His hard work paid off at the County Invitational where he took first place. Mark said, "I was happy to win since it was my senior year and I've been hoping I'd get it."

So, whether students run to their homes, other states, or for the border, the summer brings fun and a needed break for all!

We've Got Spirit Yes, We Do

We've Got Spirit, How About You? Juniors say, "We've got more!"

Three week old vegetable dip, moldy, smelly tomato soup, and noodles drenched in ranch dressing, mustard, and tabasco sauce are just a few of the ingredients found in the swimming pool during spirit week games.

The treasure hunt game involved blindfolded students searching for miniature bouncy balls in a blown up wading pool filled with regurgitated-looking leftovers that filled the gym with a disgusting odor.

"I asked my mom to save soup for three weeks, so I could add it to the pool," said Katie Hovanec, chairperson of the games.

Tim Busci jumped into the tiny pool, splashing the slop everywhere. Chrissy Johnstone was one of the unfortunate players splashed by Tim. She said that it was bad enough putting her hands in it, let alone getting a mouthful.

The shaving cream lunch time game took a turn for the worst when handfulls of shaving cream were thrown at anyone within striking distance. Participants and a few innocent bystanders were unwillingly covered in shaving cream, leaving student council members to clean up the mess.

A few teachers showed their pride by participating in the dress-up days. Mr. Winkler participated every day, wearing anything from a flannel night shirt for p.j. day to flashing back to the rock-n-roll days of the 80's.

"When I came walking out of my room Monday morning I happened to see Ms. Langley. She gave me a funny look, obviously forgetting about Spirit Week, and nonchalantly asked 'Are we spending the night now, Mr. Winkler?' "

During senior citizen day Mrs. Kloc had a student walk by her desk and comment about never having seen a sub that old.

The week included the traditional volleyball games, class yell, gym decorating, gym clean up, and the victory game against Alma followed by the dance.

After the points were added the juniors emerged as winners of Spirit Week '98, followed by the seniors and sophomores.

Don't Leave Home Without It

Students know that planners and backpacks are two daily requirements.

When students think of the phrase "Don't leave home without it", it's not their American Express cards that they're worried about. It's their planners. Because of the new school policy, students can not leave class unless they have their planner signed by their teacher. Mrs. Hahnenberg said, "The policy came through the school improvement team which has students, parents, teachers, and administrators on it."

The exact planner policy states that: when a student must leave the classroom, the teacher will jot down the destination, time and initial the planner and the day's date. No planner/no pass. Replacement planners can be purchased in the office.

Because of this policy, many students keep their planners just in case they need to go somewhere during class. David Conrad, a freshman, says that he just uses his planner for passes.

Some students who have their own style of planners. Daniel Thompson, Amanda Brasfield, and Ed Sumbera are all freshmen, and they have their own planners.

Mr. Tithof said, "I think it's good for the teachers because when the students go up and ask to use the pass, they can see how many passes that student has used that day."

Not only do the students take their planners to class, some of them also take their backpacks. Brooke Thompson, a sophomore, said, "I take my backpack with me so that I always have everything and extra pens and pencils with me, just in case I need them."

Unlike many schools, there is no current school policy against carrying your backpack with you to class at our school. However, many parents, students, and teachers have expressed a concern about it. Mrs. Hahnenberg said, "I have been trying to come up with a way to make a policy, but I don't want to have too many rules. I know that it is hard for some students to go from one class, to their locker, and to their next class in five minutes."

Some students have made their backpacks stand out from everyone else's by putting little keychains or beads on them. Lindsay Christiansen, a sophomore, said, "I have a whole bunch of Energizer flashlight key chains hanging from my backpack."

When it comes to school essentials, backpacks and planners are at the top of the list.

WHAT TO DO? Jamie Kulhanek sits in the hall examining her planner. "I was looking to see what I had to do for the day. I don't like planners because you have to carry them around everywhere," said Jamie.

HAVE BACKPACK, WILL TRAVEL. James McDougall, Josh Ruddy, and David Conrad go out in the hall to read in their Reading For Enjoyment class. They had to read a classic novel, a biography, and a book of choice. "I like carrying my backpack because I don't have to go to my locker and I carry everything in it," said Josh.

SCREEN STUDIER. The Wednesday before the pageant the girls gathered together at the Bonnymill Inn for a meal and a brief interview with Gene Riley. While waiting to speak with Gene the girls watched the 1997 pageant, rewinding the questions over and over.

CROWNED QUEEN. Queen Andrea Amman said, "The pageant was the most nerve-racking thing I've ever experienced. My mom and dad were great supporters. The night before my mom made me put on my dress and shoes, and practice "walking like a lady". Needless to say I still happened to trip during dress rehearsal. I suppose it all paid off in the end, though."

IT'S GOTTA BE THE SHOES. To get a feel for walking in heels the girls were required to wear them at dress rehearsal. The girls did much more walking this year than they have in the past. Many of the girls said it helped keep their minds off the audience.

WAITING IN ANTICIPATION. Before the announcing of the 1998 court the girls gathered together in the band room, kicking off their shoes and relaxing a bit. "While waiting I threw off my shoes and attempted to sit on the ground in my dress. I felt completely relaxed," said Amber Nigl.

Taking it on the Road

Queen Andrea Amman and her court will be seen in more parades than in the past, a total of 28.

On Saturday, January 24, 1998 on the Chesaning Middle School stage, Gene Riley changed the lives of four girls. However, the announcement of the queen and her court was not ordinary. Rather than the third runner up, Mr. Riley accidentally announced Queen Andrea Amman first. "I was shocked. I didn't really know what was going on. It finally dawned on me when DeAnn Unger, last year's queen, came and crowned me. I didn't mind. It took the pressure off," Andrea said.

Next, Jolene Chrysler, third runner up, Katie Apsey, second runner up, and Tina Danek, first runner up were also crowned.

The nine applicants willing to try for the 28 parade position included the future court, Kari Chludil, Amber Nigl, Sarah Bublitz, Kristy Newton, and Tara Larkin who went to the Bonnymill Inn Wednesday night to meet the Showboat Committee and Gene and Jackie Riley. "I felt much more comfortable after speaking with Gene and talking to the rest of the girls trying out," said Kari Chludil.

The next meeting for the girls was Friday's dress rehearsal. Tina Danek said, "At the rehearsal Tara (Larkin) and I were waiting backstage to practice our walk. Tara told me that she feels more confident if she pretends to be a supermodel. So, I brought a CD to the pageant with the song, "Supermodel." We listened to it before we went on stage!"

Saturday came quickly without any more time for preparations. After the crowning and picture taking, the court went to the Heritage House with the Committee and judges, and the rest of the participants went to the Brass Bell with Mrs. Hahnenberg. After meeting with her court, Queen Andrea Amman admitted, "I'm looking forward to a great year with a bunch of great girls!"

CROWNING MOMENT. The nine contestants grab onto one another's hands and wait eagerly for the crowning moment. Everybody was a bit surprised when Gene Riley announced the Queen, Andrea Amman, first.

ALL CHOKED UP

Carly Brady, Heidi Weisenberger, Andy McAlpine, and Meagen Shook take a break from their classwork. Some teachers allow a short five to eight minute break to allow their students to get a drink of water or take a bathroom break. Andy said, "Breaks are fun, because they are a time for friends to come together. It's good to have a break between a long, hard two hour class."

Linda Kersten consoles Kim Streng after Kim was denied playing in the speedball game. Kim didn't turn in her permission slip on time, so she had to watch from the sidelines. "Kim was mad because she didn't get to play speedball, but it was okay because she got to spend time with me!" said Linda.

People

If you were asked to explain your perception of all of the people in school, you may envision the senior, junior, sophomore, or freshman classes. But if you examine each student, you can see the trends of today. If you're lucky, you may observe people dressed in unique ways. Some students will make you wink when they dress up for the freshman/sophomore dance, while others will make you blink. You won't believe your eyes when you witness your first Mock Rock. Students might be seen scoping out the lunch room. To all of the people who have many differing images,"Here's looking at you, kids!"

Sarah Schneider looks like she's boogy-ing down, but she's really just playing hacky sack. Students started to play hacky sack outside, while the weather was nice. "I really like playing hacky sack, but I'm not very good at it. I only play once in a while," said Sarah.

SHOW ME THE MONEY! Mindy Bitterman rolls up the change brought in from the pop machines in Student Council. Student Council uses this money to pay for the supplies they need to run pep assemblies and other student body activities. "We use the hallway to count our change and to make signs. We go out in the hall because it is fun and we get to see people walk by," said Mindy.

Students feel sitting in their classrooms is not quite exciting enough, so when teachers let them go in the hall to work it is...

DOWN TO THE CORE. Tyler Frelitz and Alana Hays work on their Core Democratic Values project for Mr. Messinger's government class. The class was divided into groups to do this assignment which was based on the Constitution. Some students made collages about equality, freedom, or independence.

"I think it is cool that the teachers let us go in the hall because it's too crowded in classrooms, and it keeps us from going crazy," said Tyler.

RESCUE 911. Andrea Escamilla earns her Adult CPR and Standard First Aide cards in Miss VanLoon's health class. Students practice CPR on dummies, also known as PALS, for a week to get the whole physical experience. The dummies are provided by the Saginaw County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

"I like working in the hall because it gives us more room to work, especially when we were working with the dummies. The dummies were helpful because if someone gets into an accident I'll know how to help them so they don't die," said Andrea.

Remembering the Class of '98

Now and Then

In 30 years one of my best friends, Mindy Bitterman, will be 47 years old. In the year 2028, she will be ending her career in the WNBA, and will most likely be married with a few kids. When she retires she will live in Amsterdam with me.

Chris Dones, who is pushing 50, will probably own his own Body shop, where he will be redoing my '98 Dodge Viper. Chris will be single until he is 80 something. On the weekends Chris and I will go do laps around the local speedway backward.

Forty-eight year old, Marcos Trevino, will be a Special Services Sgt. in the Marines. At 4 or 5 a.m. on Friday Marcos, Jayson Steele, and I will go gambling in Las Vegas at our favorite casino owned by one of our friends, Ray Haddad. It will be called the "Sand Trap," and Ray will let us stay in the complimentary suites appropriately named "The winners Suites." By this time I'm sure my good friend Anne Birchmeier will be planning our 30th class reunion, where I hope to see all of my old school buddies.

Tyler Frelitz

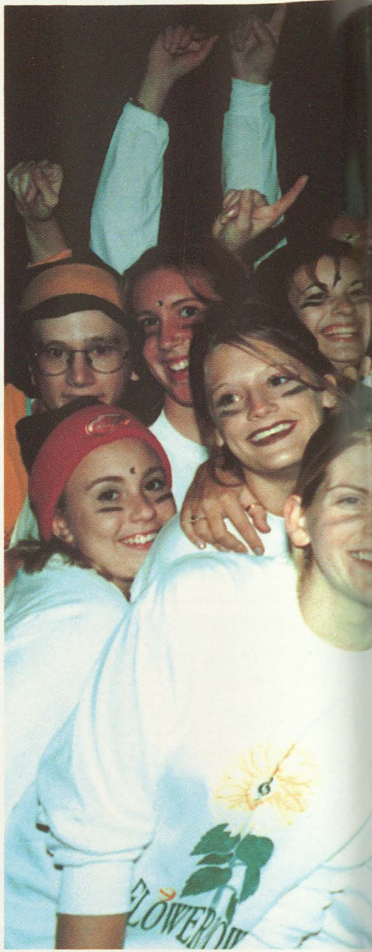
I was looking forward to having a relaxing 18th birthday. That day at school was nice. I got a few birthday cards, some balloons, some brownies, you know, the usual. No one really made a big fuss. After school, Claire Mahoney, and Erin Pease, gave me a ride home. The whole time, they were laughing about something, so I said, "Yeah, I bet when I get home there will be a bunch of people screaming surprise!" Claire started laughing like I'd said something really stupid. It was as if she was saying, "Like there would actually be a party for you." So I gave up on that idea. When Claire pulled in my driveway she and Erin started laughing hysterically. Then my brother jumped out of the trunk. Man, all that time I was thinking they were laughing because they had some big secret about my birthday!

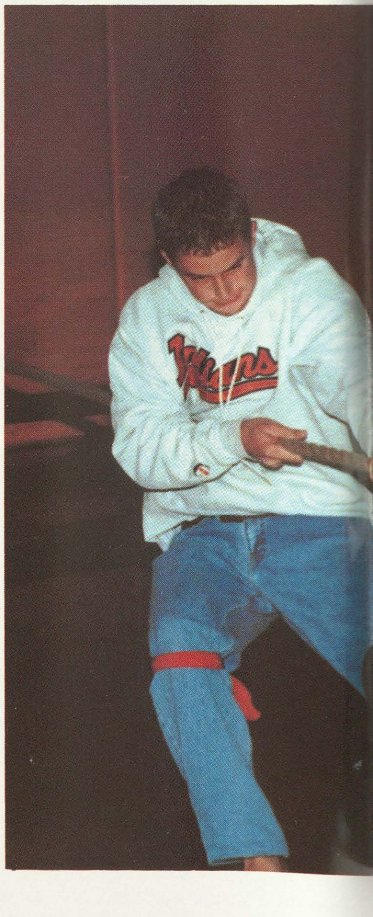
Well, later that night, Sarah Bublitz came and picked me up to go to the movies. We were about halfway there when she realized she left her wallet at my house. I told her I'd pay, but she said she needed her license. We got to my house and the lights were off. I said to Sarah, "Hmm. No one's home." Before I knew it, I was trying to escape my own surprise party. I started yelling at Sarah for tricking me. I should have seen her leave her wallet, and I should have noticed that even though the lights were off, the cars were in the driveway. Even though I was embarrassed, I got over it and my 18th birthday turned into the best one I've ever had. Thanks guys!

Molly Stover

During our sophomore year Michelle Rider, Katie Apsey, Jill Amman, and I decided to spend prom night in Katie's camper watching movies and eating all the food Katie made us. Around three in the morning, while we were watching our sixth movie, I got up and decided to eat some ice cream. That's when we heard a strange noise. Everybody looked at me because they thought I was trying to scare them. I finally convinced them that I didn't do it when we heard someone singing the Brady Bunch theme song. Then we saw people running around the camper and rocking it. We all huddled in a group in the middle of the room so we wouldn't be by the windows. The next thing we knew, someone had their hands on the window making the Van Halen sign. As soon as we saw it we knew who it was, Matt Gewirtz and Bill Lickman. Deciding to be brave, Jill and I opened the door and started yelling for them to come in. All of a sudden, the door came flying back at us and we got caught in it. Jill had her glasses on and one side of the frame got mangled. I, on the other hand, had my head smashed into the metal door casing on the camper. When Matt and Bill finally came in we had a good laugh. Needless to say that it was a night that none of us will ever forget. Jill's glasses are still broken.

Kristy Umstead





WE ARE THE CHAMPIONS. Senior speedball players celebrate after a 8-2 victory over the juniors. "I'll miss playing speedball because you get to see the true side of people," said Karlye Gross.

FIRE UP. Jeff Hemker and Dave Atkinson demonstrate their cheerleading skills by leading their class in their "Old McDonald Had a Farm" cheer, at the pep assembly. The seniors received first place for their cheer. "You don't know how stupid you are, until you are a cheerleader—a male one, that is," said Jeff Hemker.

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST. Mark James and Zach Thurston participate in the tug-of-war game, during the homecoming pep assembly game. "We should have won, because we're seniors, but I really think the freshmen got lucky," said Zach Thurston

ON THE BALL. Spirited seniors dressed up in their Cinderella garb to walk behind their float in the parade. "I think we had the most fun building our float this year, because we're seniors," said Theresa Hemker.

UNDER THE SEA! The juniors roamed the ocean floor and surfaced with a first place finish during this year's float building festivities. The juniors' float included: a paper mache' clam, crab, bird, and a fish. It also included, a baby pool and a castle painted on the backdrop of the float, and "Arial the Mermaid" posing with her own football and helmet, fully equipped for the game. The float was constructed at Kim Streng's house.

SQUIGGLY WIGGLY WORMS! Brad Fite, Ryan Bretall, Kevin Gross, Ryan Brady and Derek Hill compete in the lunchtime game, "Worm Relay." "It was the most painful experience of my entire life. I guarantee Hill would say the same. We fought through the pain and won the lunch time game," said Ryan Bretall.

For Varsity football players, unity meant being

BALD AND BEAUTIFUL

L. Springer

IS BEING BALD BETTER? Members of the Varsity football team display their freshly shaved heads. Most players decided to buzz their hair to show team unity—others were forced into the situation.

- "I said, 'If one person wears black socks, we all wear black socks. If one person shaves his head, we all shave our heads.' We're a team-oriented club."—Ryan Brady
- "It's just something different. We wanted to get everybody involved."—Anthony Shackelford
- "Agnew called and said to come over there or they were going to come over to my house. About 10-15 minutes later, they were knocking at my door, wanting to cut my hair. Well, you know what happened."—Andy Hemgesberg
- "I'd originally planned on doing it when I was a senior, but I figured, "Heck, there's no time like the present."—Brad Maike
- "It's my senior year, it's just team unity. Sophomores did it, so seniors better do it."—Joe Escamilla
- "People might think we're ugly, but man, we're beautiful."—Drew Reiber
- "We shaved our heads because we wanted to, we had to, because James said so."—Zara Maldonado
- "I didn't really want to shave my head, but the boys made me, so I had to."—Anthony Turner
- "I think they all decided to do it together to try to show unity—that they were all in this thing together. And no, I'm not shaving my head. I don't need to shave my head to show them that I'm in this with them."—Coach Szappan

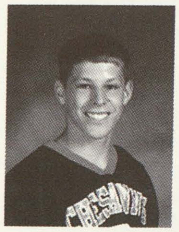
OH NO! THERE IT GOES. The official barber, Jeff James, makes finishing touches on Erik Meder's new "hair cut" as fellow teammates, Andy McAlpine and Zara Maldonado, watch him work."I didn't want to do it, but they dragged me down there and made me do it. I didn't really have much of a choice," said Erik. Jeff James stated, "We shaved everybody's hair. We put it in a garbage bag. We're gonna spread it somewhere, I don't know where yet. It's a surprise." Only two brave souls never decided to achieve the "look" of their teammates. Brock Harger didn't do it because, "It looks really, really bad." Mike Skodak looked at his independence in a different way. He said, "I figured that with everybody's hair gone, that maybe the chicks will come falling towards my way." Adam Anderson stated that many players didn't want to go through with it, but once they did they now don't regret it. However, after they were bald, many players did, in fact, wish that they had their hair back. "It's my senior year and I've never seen myself totally bald before, so I decided to do it. And yeah, I do regret it because now I'm just bald and ugly," said Jon Johnstone.

Sneak a peek



First, I went over James' house. I didn't know if I wanted to get my hair cut or not, but when I got there, the intensity was just unreal. I couldn't say no, so I said 'Cut it. I want the DELUXE.'"—Andy McAlpine

BARE NECESSITIES! The sophomores be-bopped with Baloo on Disney's "The Jungle Book" float this year. Their float had a paper-mache' panther and a huge cardboard Baloo. The float came totally equipped with fruit baskets, which contained oranges and bananas and treasure chests with treasure in them. They also had two big palm trees with coconuts and a working waterfall as they paraded downtown. The sophomores took third place overall after all their hard and long hours at Tracy Newland's house.

Jungle Fever. Jenny Fish and Michelle Zoellner show off their school spirit as they pose for a picture dressed in their Homecoming theme. The sophomore's theme this year was Walt Disney's Jungle Book. Sophomore's had to wear anything from camouflage to bringing things like binoculars and canteens.

HAKUNA MATATA! The freshmen had Jungle Fever this year while building their float using the Disney's theme of the "Lion King". Pumba, Simone, Simba, Nala and Mufasa all hitched a ride on the float. The freshmen also had a waterfall running through their jungle, and a moonlight backdrop that covered the back of their float. Their big Mufasa sat at the front of the float. Despite their hard work and effort the freshmen placed fourth overall in the competition. They constructed their float at Kasey Strait's house.

The new pop machine was just one of the many things that the lunch program has gotten this year. Many students like the convenience of having a pop with their lunch.

WHAT A BUNCH!!! Nick Brock helps Jill Amman carry flowers down the hall, delivering them to the Color guard girls. The flowers that were given to them were to wish them good luck at their State competition. Each girl in the group received a flower. Parents are always sending flowers and little treats to wish their child good luck for a game, or to tell them they did a good job. Sometimes during the day, a team might be called down for a special surprise. Our Student Council also does things for people in all different kinds of activities. They send little notes with candles on them saying good luck or a job well done. Whatever the situation, surprises come every day.

SURPRISE!!! Mandy Odenbaugh poses for a picture with some of her friends on her sixteenth birthday. Mandy's friends gave her a bunch of balloons and a bouquet of flowers. They also bought her a little gift. Her friends planned the whole thing without Mandy even knowing anything about it. Mandy said she was both surprised and happy that her friends did this for her. Surprises come all the time in school, whether it's flowers, candy, balloons, cards, or any other kind of gift. The office won't bring the flowers to students' classes, so what they do is send the student a note telling them that they have something in the office to pick up.

Mrs. Tithof's oldest daughter had to mow lawns during the whole summer in order to help pay for the dog. They had to buy things like food, a cage, toys, etc. Mrs. Tithof said that Tyrone really doesn't like loud noises, so she thinks that is one of the reasons why Tyrone didn't make a good race dog.

GO, GO, GO, JOE!! English teacher Mrs. Shaw participates in Owosso Community Players Production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." She played the role of the baker and one of the wives.

TRAIL RIDING! Mrs. Bretall and her two sons Ryan and Brian stop to pose for a picture while biking the trails of Colorado, near Estes Park. Mrs. Bretall and her family take lots of vacations throughout the year. Sometimes they go out of state.

PIECE BY PIECE

Cameron Lorencz and Jim Fowler take a motor apart and put it back together in Mr. McConnell's Auto Tech I class. The students had to pick a motor to take apart. "North Star is a very high performance motor and was very difficult that's why we chose it," said Jim.

GO FISH

Jennifer Walker plays go fish in Mrs. Kloc's Sign Language class. The students had to sign different objects and colors to the person they wanted the card from and then that person had to sign back to them telling them if they had it or not.

IT'S YOUR FUTURE

Mr. Stump's Future Planning Class went to watch a modular home being put up behind Frosty's. The students were able to tour the house and then ask Randy Stoddard questions about how it is done.

Academics

As you scan some classrooms throughout the hallways, you will see some students seeking knowledge while others simply gaze into space. But, if you go closer to investigate, you may get a new perspective. All of the presentations and games in class would be quite a sight. If you continue to explore students' academic views, you will need to peer into the guidance office. You will see students inspecting the lists of requirements, electives, and some new classes. When the time comes for students to begin searching for the college of their choice, parents and teachers say, "Don't overlook anything!"

BARBIE GIRL

Jolene Chrysler uses Barbie's for her visual aid in Ms. Shaw's Communication Skills class. The students had to choose a word from their vocabulary list and help people understand it. Jolene got the word pseudo, so she used two Barbie's getting married in a skit, like a soap opera, to show that it meant fake.

HOW SWEET IT IS

Jill Amman gives her in-depth research project in Mrs. Tithof's ALM Class. The students got to pick any topic they were interested in and would be motivational. Jill chose cooking and made desserts out of her own homemade cookbook.

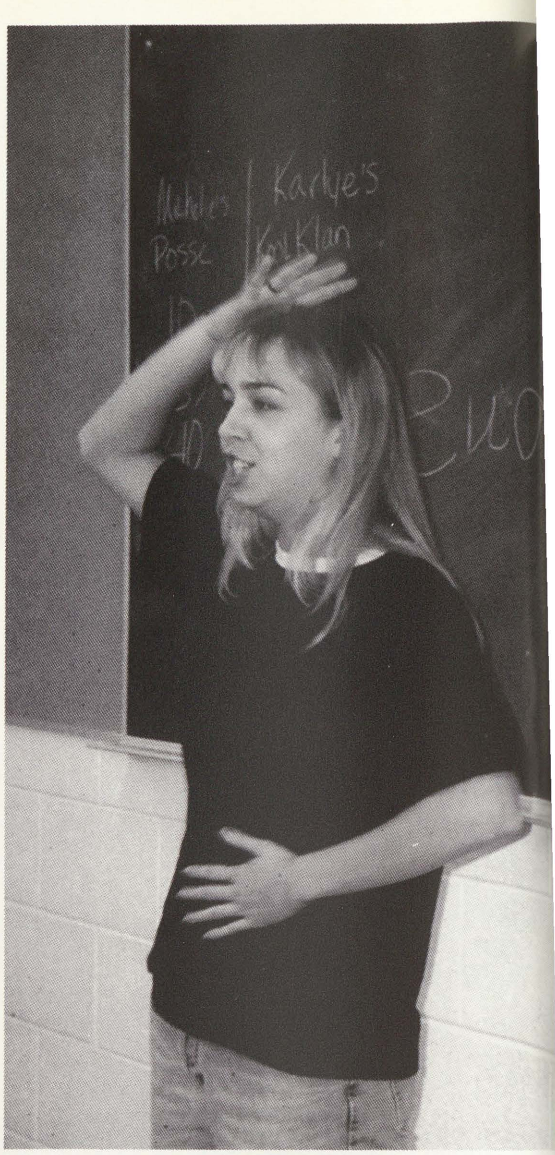
THREE OF A KIND. Jolene Chrysler, Angie Fielbrandt, and Amber Nigl try to get their team to guess their vocabulary word in Ms. Shaw's Communication Skills class. The class had to divide in half and three people from each team had to form a pyramid on opposite sides of the room. The person on top of the pyramid had to give hints about their word to try to get the team to guess it. When someone from the team knew the answer they had to go to the front of the room and yell the word.



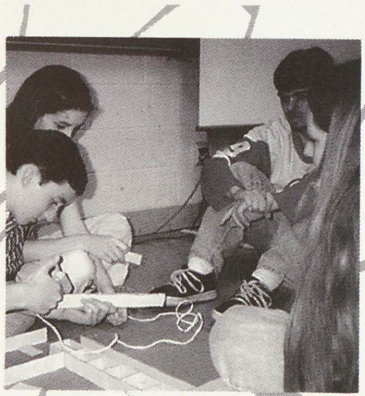
When teachers decide their only defense against boredom is playing a game, sometimes the students get...

A Little Nutty

J. Shaw

DISCO MANIA. Sarah Tomac and Sara Seal play Discomania to help them with their vocabulary words. Ms. Shaw made the game in the early 80's after she took a game-making class; she often puts on the Saturday Night Fever album while the kids are playing the game.

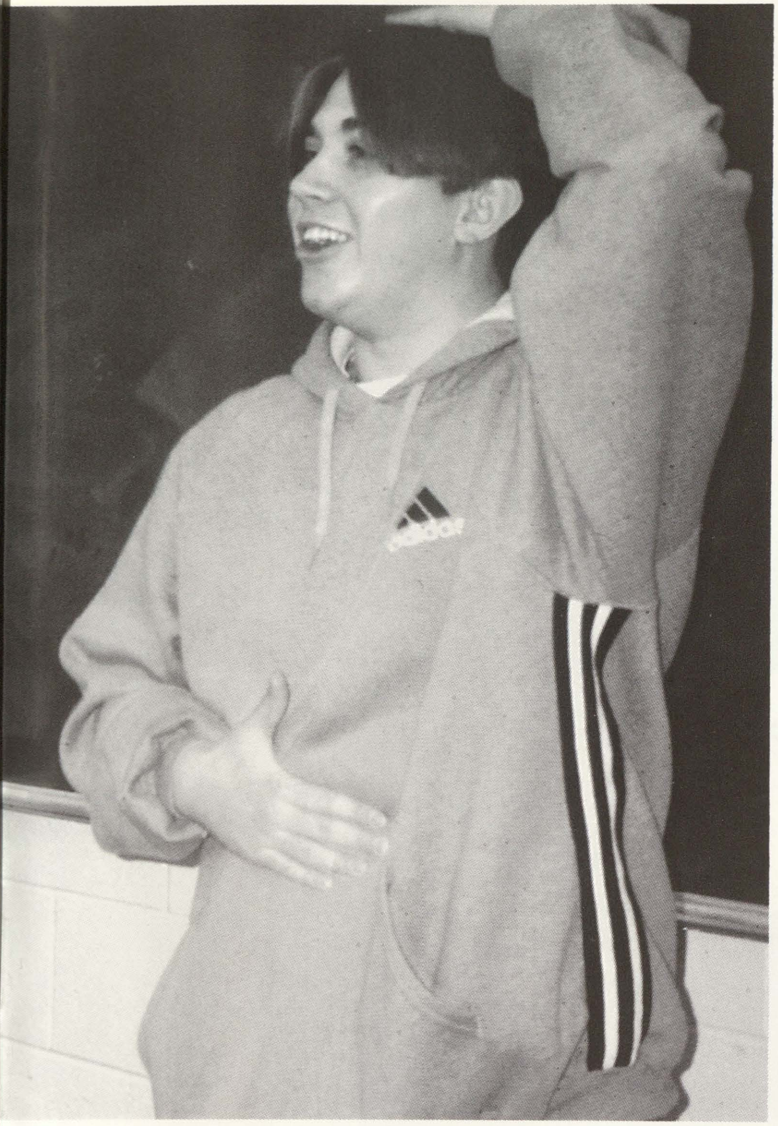
"Playing Disco Mania was fun and educational. It helped us learn our vocabulary words," said Sarah Tomac.



J. Shaw

CLASS ACT. Mark Lanczynski, Rachel Turnwald, Ryan Thiel, and Brandi Braeutigan work together to put a wall on the model school that their class had to build. The students had four weeks out of the trimester to build the model and the whole class was involved in building it.

"Building the model was fun because it was easy," said Mark.



J. Shaw

GETTING IT DOWN PAT. Chad Shuster and Michele Bates play a vocabulary review game in their Communication Skills class. The class divided into two groups and one person from each group had to pick a word out of a hat and then do a crazy activity to get the team to guess the word. The first team to figure out what the word was got a point.

TAKE A HIKE. Kristy Umstead and Katie Apsey get ready to block the ball from the offense in Mrs. Tithof's ALM class. The group had to come up with a way of showing the class how the R.A.M. in a computer downloads its data. Allie told the megabytes how many of them it would take to download and they had to try to get it to the ''goal'' before they were denied access.

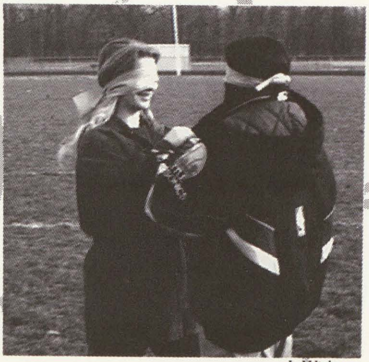
''When students get tired of worksheets, it's fun to review by playing games,'' said Ms. Shaw.

MOVIN' ON. Jon Rathfon and Audra Willson play a noun, pronoun, and adjective review game in Ms. Shaw's English II class. The students had to get in groups of four to play the game, which helped them distinguish parts of speech.



J. Wiskup

''It's a fun activity that proves my point. The students learn what selective active listening is about. They have to choose to listen,'' said Mrs. Mishler.

BLIND FAITH. Georgina White and Melissa Zamora find each other during a listening skills activity in Mrs. Mishler's Speech I class. The students had to divide into groups of two and think of a two-part word. Each one of them had to get on a different end of the football field and yell the word to each other.

PSYCHIC POWERS. Holly Shooltz reads Tara Larkin's future to Mr. Stump's psychology class. Holly had to show the class how to use Tarot cards. "I like speaking because everybody pays attention and finds it interesting," said Holly.

ALL DOLLED UP! Karlye Gross gives a speech on Czechoslovakia in Skills for Living. Her family is from there and she got the visual aids from her grandma.

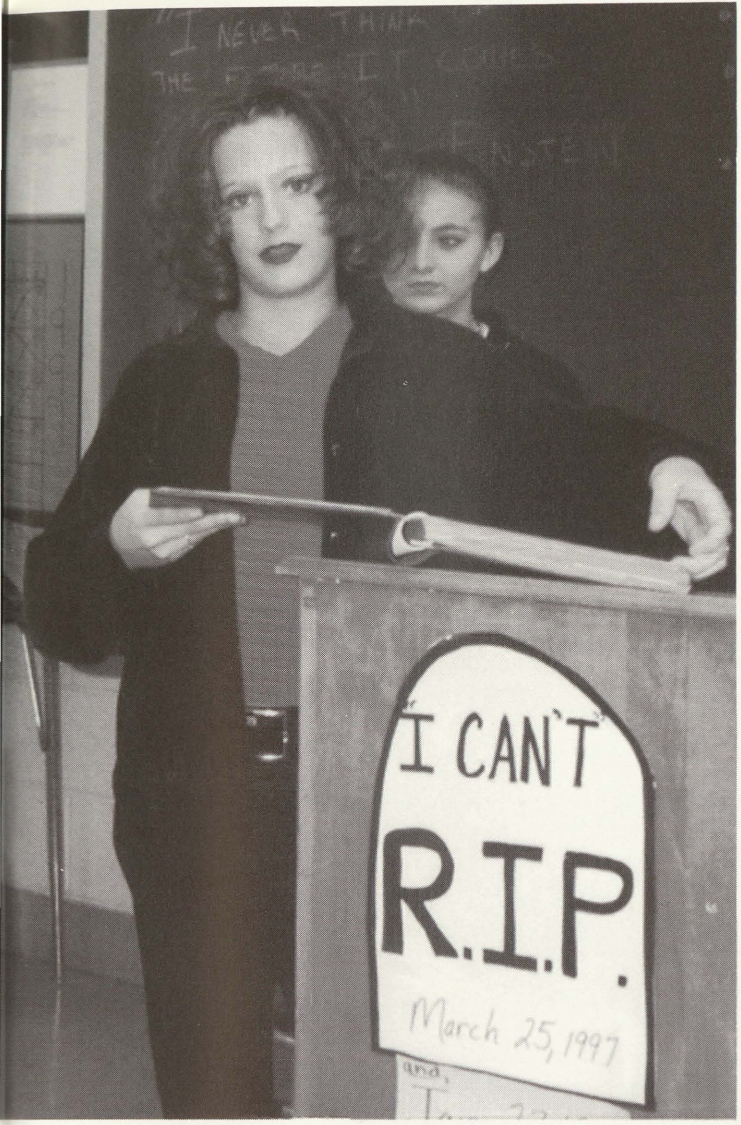
WEIGHTING AROUND. Meagen Shook watches Joe Ballard, Andy McAlpine, Brent Gross, and Josh Malkaski give a presentation about the different weights and weight machines for Mr. Murdoch's speech I class. The class had to divide in groups and give a 20 to 30 minute presentation for one of their final speeches.

"I really didn't like speech class that well, because I don't like getting in front of a group of people and talking," said Meagen.

M. Garant

RUFF! RUFF! April Cross presents her cuddly puppy in Mrs. Tithof's Skills for Living class. The students had to bring in something that represented them and tell the class why it meant so much to them.

"I was fine giving my presentation to the class because I had my dog and presentations don't bother me," said April.



J. Shaw

"I got the joke from my mom. It was about St. Peter and everyone thought it was really funny," said Amanda.

JOKING AROUND. Amanda Harris takes her turn, in Mrs. Mishler's speech I class, getting up in front of the class to tell her jokes. The students had to tell the class jokes to help them feel comfortable in front of the class.

"I like doing speeches, I have no fears. You just have to talk about what you know," said Josh.

SPEAK UP! Josh Messinger gives his speech in Mr. Murdoch's speech I class. Josh was talking about the different kinds of trolls. His speech was an informative and it had to be two to three minutes long.

SMART SHOPPERS. In the Marriage and Parenting class, Michele Bates and Kyle Kieselbach learn how to budget and manage money whether they were rich or poor. "I had fun during this class, my favorite part was being married," said Kyle. "Kyle is a good husband. When I said jump, he asked how high," said Michele Bates.

INCREDIBLE, EDIBLE RESORT. For her ALM project, Careen Tithof designed a herbal resort. She was going to make a model, but instead decided to build everything out of food. There wasn't a thing you couldn't eat. "My project took a lot of time planning because most students had the trimester to work on it. I had to make my project in one night. I started it when I got home from school which was 2:30 and worked on it until 2:30 in the morning," said Careen.

"We don't get to do a whole lot because it's only a one hour class. I thought it was fun becuase I like doing activities," said Jason Bates.

WEIRD SCIENCE. During Mr. Quaderer's Earth Science class Tyler Danek was testing different types of soils, to see how fast water went through it.

YO QUERRO TACO BELL. Angie Escamilla and Kim Streng were partners for making food in Spanish class. Every group was assigned to make something different and everyone got to eat the food.

"Jerilynn Giesken and Amanda Palmer were in a group together and they made fried bananas over rice and it was so gross," said Angie Escamilla.

SAND ART. Chelsi Walser and Ben Shook team up as they work on a lab in Science II. Working on labs allows the students to have fun while working together as a team. "When I was working on a lab with Ben, he spilled the water all over the place," said Chelsi.

A LITTLE HELP. Mike Skodak gets a little help from Mrs. Dickie in English III. "I like Mrs. Dickie's class because I can learn about all the great poets such as Edgar Allen Poe, Nevermore baby," said Mike Skodak.

MUDDY SITUATION. Katie Vogelaar works on her lab in science II. Students had to pour water into a container filled with sand to see how long it would take to form a puddle at the top.

SHAPE UP. Brandon Thiel and Jacob Bates experiment with the Play-Doh made by Lacy Schmeige during her demonstration speech in Mrs. Mishler's speech class.

A BIT COUNTRY. Zach Chludil works on a country report in World Geography. World Geography is now a required class for all students graduating in the year 2000 and beyond.

"I did all this work for nothing, I worked hard and everything and didn't score too high. I was not happy at all with my grade," said Zach.

CUSTOM MADE. Anne Birchmeier, Mandy Klein, and Robin Rodriguez explain to the Sociology class the customs in other countries. Each group was assigned a decade and presented their findings. "I liked it because we got to dress up for our decade (the 60's)," said Mandy.

HOLY MATRIMONY! Jo Jo Escamilla and Betsie Berg exchange their vows during their mock wedding day in Marriage and Parenting. With their imaginary spouses, students plan a household budget, shop for food, have children, buy a car, and buy a house.

"We're going to use the signs again next year, that's why we took them apart and stored them away," said Melissa Smith.

GREASED LIGHTNING. Anthony Turner and Tim Busci rebuild the engine they took apart in Auto Tech I class. Many students enjoy this class to gain knowledge in repairing their cars in case of a breakdown.

"Auto Tech will probably be useful to me in the future because it can save you some cash when your car breaks down," said Anthony Turner.

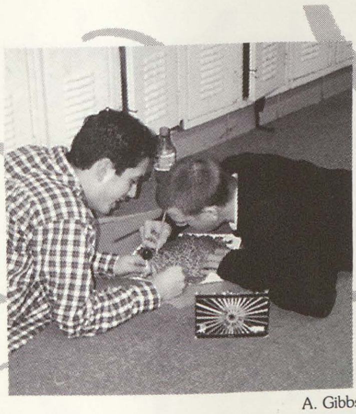
WOULD YOU LIKE FRIES WITH THAT? Sign Language students went to Burger King to earn their grade for their final exam. They had to sign what they wanted to order to one of their classmates who then translated for the Burger King worker. For the second part of the exam, students interviewed someone from Eminent Day, using only sign language to communicate.

"Sign Language was in a way easy. But it could be useful if you had a job and you'd be able to communicate with the hearing impaired," said Amanda Palmer.



A. Gibbs

TAKING CARE OF BUSINESS. Jon Johnstone works on his art with a little help from Erick Gillham. The students had to pick a word and hide it in a circle of designs, picking their own color harmony to create an ambiguous figure ground.

"Ms. Hautamaki is cool, you can do basically what you want. It's like being independent. The first project we did took me awhile to do. I worked hard on it. Gillham helped me color and perfect it," said Jon Johnstone.

THE CLOCK'S TICKING. Renae James, Brad Fite, Linda Kirsten, Careen Tithof, Tana Larkin, and Andy Hemgesberg try to build a bridge using straws, two desks, and tape. Mrs. Tithof gave the ALM class five minutes to build the bridge, then she dropped golf balls in a bucket tied to the bridge to see how many it would hold.

IT TAKES TWO. Michelle Garant and Kristi Adams work intensely on the yearbook. The yearbook staff uses the hallway so that they can have room to lay out all of their papers that are too big to fit on the desks. "Yearbook is a blast; it's a lot of hard work though," says Kristi.

"I think that working in class makes learning limited. It's easier doing work when you have more free space," said Krysta.

HALL RATS. Stephanie Garikes and Krysta Shulte enjoy their break from class. Depending on the teacher, some students get up to a five minute break, to keep them from getting tired in their two hour blocks.

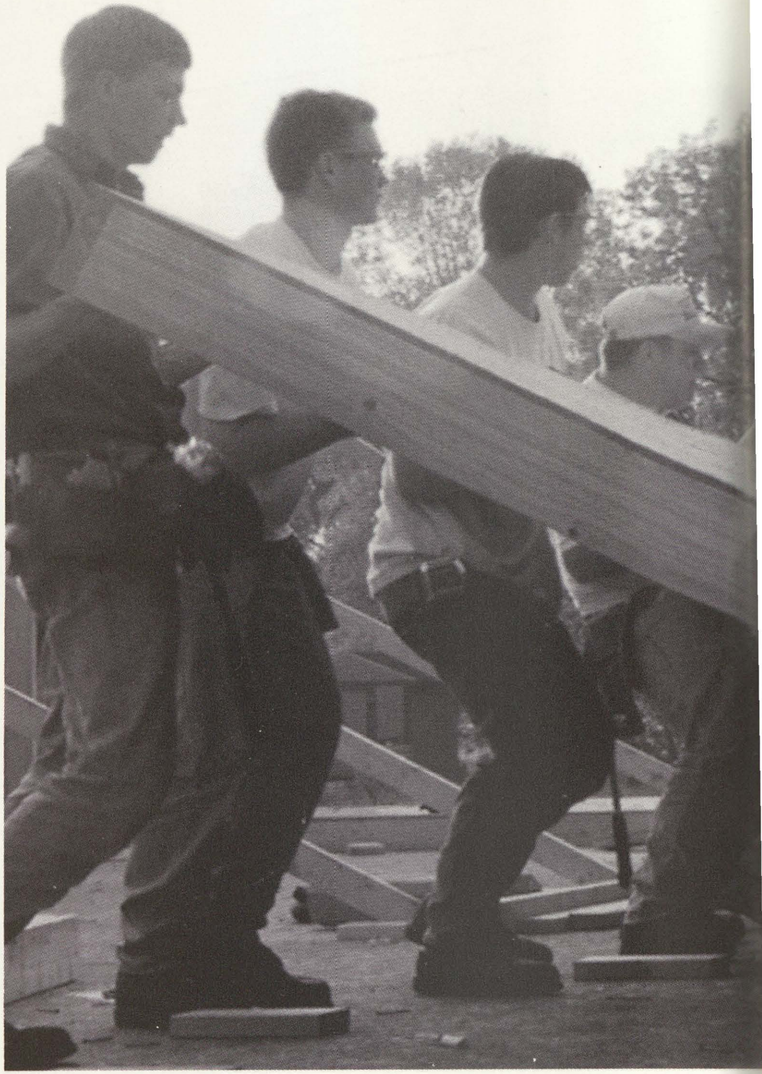
SORT EM' AND STORE EM'. Jen Bueche and Kellie Hunt sort out the colored pencils during Miss Hautamaki's art class. "Being able to go out in the hall is useful, because it lets us stretch out," says Jen.

"It is quiet in the hall and I can get my work done. The hallways gave us space to spread the pencils out," said Kellie.



OFF TO WORK WE GO. Three days out of the week Drew Archibald takes a trip to Carrolton to build a house for the Humanity. He is working for his builders license, which he will receive after 2 years. "It was hard work to put the wall up, but we managed. It took 17 people just to push it up. I enjoy learning about the building trade," said Drew Archibald.

SHEAR MADNESS. Tana Larkin is working to get 1500 hours in at cosmetology to earn her license. She plans on cutting hair for a side job in college and for later on in life.

"One time I messed up on a guy's hair, and gave him a bald spot up the side of his head. I was so scared, I started to cry and ran into the bathroom," said Tana Larkin.

PINCH POKE. Melissa Cairl practices preparing an IV to inject into the patient. Although the C.O.C. students have fun leaving the school, they also have fun learning different things.

"It's a tough job to learn because there is so much you have to know. Nursing is fun, unless you're on the other end," said Melissa Cairl.

Jolene McCormic plays center against Corunna. The Indians were defeated, but they won the next game against them. "The best part about the game is learning to play with other teammates and spending time with them," said Jolene.

Sports

Fans observed several record breaking moments. The entire state watched Missy Sager steal her way to a national record of 115 stolen bases. Amy Guziak and Kendra Tithof also explored new ground, Amy setting a faster than a blink record in the 100 hurdles and Kendra with a discus record out of the eye's view. Tim Mocny in cross country and Mark James in golf were other athletes seeking the top. The Varsity Football team was quite a spectacle, and the cheerleaders have a vision of a repeat state championship-something few would ever perceive.

VARSITY TEAM HAVING A FIELD DAY

•The varsity baseball team ended their season with a record of 9-5. Craig Kukulis said one of the best games they ever played was at the Birch Run districts against Birch Run. "Birch Run was a pretty good team and we were all extremely nervous," said Craig. That nervousness quickly ended as the Indians started off with a bang!! Innings later the team became unstoppable. "We were hitting and fielding so well we couldn't even believe it!" commented Craig. The Indians stomped the Panthers 7 to 3.

•After splitting a game with the Alma Panthers in the pouring down rain, our varsity baseball players found that there was still time to have a little fun. "After our game, my teammates Cory, Levi, Justin, Craig and I took off our jerseys and slid head first into the field because it was so wet. We were covered head to toe in wetness. All of us got sick because it was so cold and wet outside," said Andy McAlpine.

•Sometimes even the best athletes look for an easy way out! Andy Hemgesberg recalls what the team used to do when they had to run in practice. "When Mr. Strait wasn't looking, instead of running the whole perimeter around the baseball field like we were supposed to, we ran to the foul line pole and back so we didn't have to run the full length." Mr. Strait never found out until one day when he noticed the antics of our team. "When Mr. Strait found out what we had been doing, he got a little angry," says Andy. We ended up having to run the entire perimeter while he watched us. We never got away with that again."

SAGER STEALS HER WAY TO THE RECORD BOOKS

•Being one of the best can be quite stressful at times, but the varsity girls' softball team found that there was always time for a little fun. Renae James said that the whole team had so much fun because they were so close. ''We were all like sisters,'' says Renae. Tillie Railing and I used to stand out in the outfield during practice with our hats on backwards singing rap songs. It was so funny. Now, Tillie is known as 'Piggy', and I'm known as 'Camel.''

•''Shock the World'' was the varsity's theme for the season. They accomplished the unthinkable, placing victory upon every team they played. The lady Indians had an overall season record of 21-12, and went on to win districts and regionals. As tension built up at regionals, pressure was also put upon a specific player. Melissa Sager had a chance to break a national record of steals in a season. The original record was set at 78 by Lynn Hockett of Frankfort in 1991. Karen Williams from Gaylord had 110 steals which had already exceeded the 78 that Hockett had. On the pitch of the next batter Melissa had her chance. This was the ''one''. As the pitch was released, Melissa headed towards second base. Everyone held their breath as they watched and waited for the call as the dust cleared. ''SAFE!!!'' All the fans cheered and applauded as Melissa shattered the record. The Indians defeated Comstock 6-3, making Sager's record break even sweeter.

•Stand-out varsity pitcher Stacie Lewis decided to give Coach Scanlon a scare by feigning an injury prior to the district game. ''She came to practice with her fingers taped up,'' explained Wendy Lanczynski. ''And she had put eyedrops in her eyes so it would look like she was crying.'' Stacie approached Coach Scanlon and told him her hand was broken and she couldn't pitch anymore. ''It was funny because Mr. Scanlon was pretty mad!'' recalls Wendy.

• The J.V. Baseball players liked to make up sayings when a player was at bat. Favorites included "Make it like a rocket and launch it," or "Make it like a banana and peel it.".

• Allie Gibbs recalls a game against Perry when short stop Sarah Lickman was literally sitting down on the job. The ball was hit to Sarah Lickman, who dived and scooped the ball up off the ground. Not even taking the time to get to her feet, she hurled the ball to first base. "The rest of our team stood on our feet in amazement and watched to see what the call would be," said Allie. "When the umpire said the runner was out of there, we were so happy for her. It was one of the greatest plays we had ever seen." The lady Indians won the double header 15-0 the first game and 20-6 the second game, improving their record to 7-4.

• Pitching can be a pretty hard and stressful position to play in baseball, but for one player on the J.V. baseball team this wasn't a problem. Jack Rose against the Montrose Rams pitched a no hitter, one of his best pitched games ever. "It was such an exciting moment for the team," said Joe Ballard.

• With the J.V. softball team down by 11 in the 5th to the Corunna Cavaliers a miracle had to happen in order for the team to win. As first batter Brooke Thompson stepped out onto the plate, teammates prayed in the dugout. After two strikes the team was getting a bit worried. Finally on the third pitch Brooke hit a base hit, which was just one of the many hits still to come. It was one of the biggest rallies ever. The Indians went on to win both games in the double header, 14-13 and 24-4.

TENNIS IS GOING TO COURT

• At Essexville-Garber, Kevin Gross and Erick Gillham played doubles. These two had been on a 3-0 win streak coming in. Out of all the singles and doubles teams from Chesaning, Erick and Kevin were the only two to win. "After losing the first set and winning the second, we went into the third set knowing we had to play really hard," said Kevin. "I was surprised at our performance and was also psyched for the continuance of our streak."

• Chris Martin gave it his all at conference and played four singles. In the end, he received Second Team All-Conference. He was put in a lucky position because he had a bye the first match and therefore automatically won. He still feels though that he should have beaten that #4 from St. Johns.

• Coach Freeland was very surprised and apparently not too pleased when Bryan Quaderer introduced John Johnstone as "Olgaha Johnstone, the new foreign exchange student," at the first meet. "After that, Mr. Freeland never let us introduce ourselves again," said Howie Ebenhoeh. "We were the only team where the coach introduced us."

•At a SVSU tournament Erick Gillham and partner Kevin Gross played a three hour match that went into a tie-breaker. After fighting their way to the tie, they were very disappointed when they lost "We had to settle for fourth place and the team we lost to got first. So, we could have won the medal, but we lost to the other team after three hours," said Erick Gillham

• No matter how much money he had, one golf player couldn't buy his way out. Chris Martin remembers what happened to him on the one day he decided that practice wasn't something he wanted to do. "Well one day, I went to practice for a couple of minutes and found out that the coach wasn't there. I decided to go to Owosso and pick up my paycheck since I had nothing else to do. The next day, I had to tell the coach I missed practice and I got suspended for a game. It was an exciting part of the season."

• Sometimes even the golfers get a little bit crazy. Kevin Gross recalls one of the scariest moments he ever experienced in his golf career during a home match against Corunna. "I was playing golf with this kid that looked like Happy Gilmore. I was on my approach shot and he was standing right beside me. I thought I could hit between this really slight and very tight shot, but boy, was I ever wrong. I lined up to hit the ball, and when I hit it, I shanked it and hit the tree that was right in front of me. It hit so hard, that it flew back and came so close to hitting my opponent he had to jump and drop his clubs. It was so scary, I thought I was going to kill him."

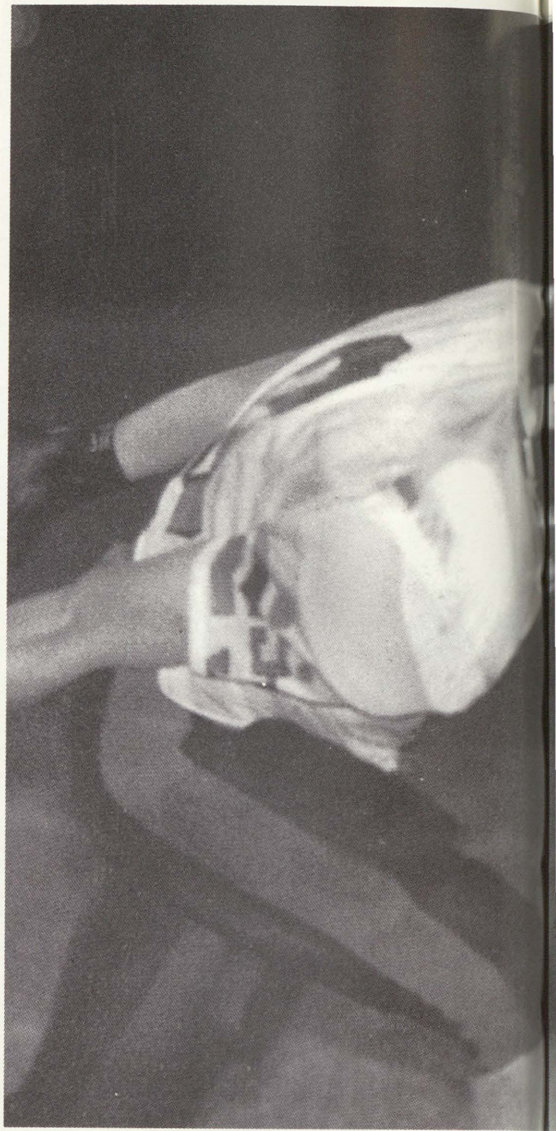
THE TEAM TRIES TO GO ALL THE WAY, BUT COMES UP SHORT



• On September 14, 1997, the Indians did the unforgettable by beating Montrose 14-12. With a 4th down and only 10 seconds left they had to score a touchdown to win the game. With Ryan Brady looking for an open receiver, the fans waited impatiently for a throw or a run. Brady found a crease in the defense and threw the ball to an open Anthony Turner. Touchdown! The frenzied crowd rushed onto the field, but the game wasn't officially over. The refs sent the hundreds of fans back to the stands for the remaining two seconds. Chesaning kicked off and Montrose had time for one more play. The Indians denied them the touchdown and the record for most consecutive season victories. The fans poured on to the field congratulating the exhausted players and each other. Chesaning was the last to beat Montrose back in 1988; since that defeat Montrose had accumulated 80 victories in regular season play. Close to 3,000 fans witnessed the heart-stopping victory.

• November 8, 1997, Chesaning played a tight "Class B regional football semifinal game" against Marysville. This game was a nail biter with only 15 seconds left to score. The game was a show stopper and the score showed it with Chesaning leading at half time 13-12. The Indians showed their shot-gun offense with Ryan Brady leading the pack. Ryan had all but 6 or 7 of the 89 yards. The time was ticking away when Ryan Brady, looking for an open man, found his favorite target, Anthony Turner. The fans saw the pass fly through the air to Anthony. Touchdown! With the scoreboard reading 19-18, Chesaning won a great game after a stunning performance by the Indians.

THE GIRLS LIT IT UP

• The Lady Indians started off their season with a 50-47 victory over St. Charles. The girls went on to win their next two games against New Lothrop and Montrose.

• The Indians shut down the Durand Railroaders 51-19 in their last MMC-B division game, giving them a 4-4 MMC record. The girls' defense was what put them over the top, not to mention their great offense. The team made 21 steals, and Mindy Bitterman had 17 points. The team however was outscored in their previous game with Corunna, which gave the Cavs the MMC-B title.

• The girls went into districts with an 8-12 record. In the first three minutes of the game, it looked as if Alma would be in the lead. They were ahead 6-0, and our girls couldn't get a basket in edgewise. Mindy Bitterman came up and tossed a three pointer, starting the Indian offense on the right track. The Lady Indians were ahead at halftime, 22-16. The girls held their lead and won 43-28.

• The Indians went on to play Shepherd for their second district game. Our girls lead 20-16 at the half and maintained at least a four point lead through the rest of the game. With 1:38 remaining, Brooke Thompson's two foul shots sealed the win. The girls then advanced to District finals, where they came up short against Swan Valley.

• The varsity girls ended their season 10-13. About their record, Renae James said, ''Well our record wasn't the best, but we did have a lot of good times, and that made up for it.'' The team said that this year was a learning year, and that it went well for them because of their friendship and trust in each other and their love of the sport. Katie Hovanec said, ''We had a lot of fun on and off the court with each other, and we learned how to set goals and reach them.'' Megan Soukup added, ''I love the game. When you love it, you don't think of it as work.''

THESE GIRLS ARE OVERFILLED WITH PRIDE

- In their second game against Nouvel, the freshman girls were down by eleven points at half-time. Coaches Bob Tuuri and Jeff Hattendorf took this time to give the girls a pep talk. "They really pumped us up," said Nicole Zervan. "Their encouragement helped us win." Katrina Weil said, "I think Nouvel was our most challenging game because even though we were down, we knew we had to come back and win."

- The freshman team broke the school record for the number of killers done in one practice. "The record was 30, but now it's 40!" Katrina Weil said. Killers are drills done to improve agility and endurance in sports. Anyone that has ever done them can tell you that they really live up to their name.

- One of the many great games played by the J.V. girls was a 60-18 win over the Durand Railroaders. Lindsay Christiansen had 14 points in that game, with three other teammates also scoring in the double figures.

- At the end of the Freshman girls' first game against Ovid-Elsie, the two teams were tied 31-31 and O-E had the ball. On their inbound, Kasey Strait stole the ball and made a fast break. The girls won the game 33-31.

- The freshman girls ended their season 7-11. Jennifer Colston said, "I feel that we did really well this year. We learned a lot of new things, like that it takes hard work and team cooperation."

- The J.V. girls were out to win their second game against Corunna, and they did just that, beating the Cavs 47-39. By beating Corunna, the team went 7-1 in the MMC and took over first place. They finished their season 15-5.

The Running Game

CROSS COUNTRY IS ON THE MOVE

• On October 4 the Indians competed against 20 schools in the Heritage Invitational, finishing tenth. The biggest surprise that day was for the star runner, Tim Mocny. "Out of the 20 different schools, somehow I placed first," said Tim. After finishing first, Tim was also named MVP for this meet. Although the team finished tenth it didn't hurt their league standing of third, or their overall record of 5-0.

• A favorite practice spot for the cross country team this year was the wooded and hilly Ringwood Forest in St. Charles. "It's a fast course," said Sarah Tomac. "I was running there one morning and some pheasants got scared up."

• To show the parents their appreciation the cross country team decided to have a pizza party for them at the Rathskeller. They ordered their pizza with everything on them, not knowing everything was jalapeno peppers. "My dad and I had to finish a whole pizza because we were the only ones who liked that kind. Everyone else ordered a second pizza," said Bill Kemerer.

• Jeff Rumisek was running in the Regionals race and he was at the mile marker and someone tripped him. "I messed up my knee and had the worst race ever," said Jeff.

• At the Ovid-Elsie meet Anders Birch got his best time. "I spiked and pushed Adam at the meet, but I don't know if that is why I got my best time."

RUN AROUND SUE. Sarah Tomac tries to take the lead in the St. Charles meet. "I would have gotten 4th," said Sarah. "But since there was only two girls on our team, we didn't qualify."

•Coming off the bench in a crucial situation in the 4th quarter, while the Indians were leading Ovid-Elsie by about 40, Jack Rose stepped onto the court. "During the very first play I was on the ground scrapping for the ball with senior forward Jon Johnstone," said Jack. "Johnstone came up with the ball and he scored 2, but when his elbow swung through the air, suddenly I was struck by brute force in the mouth. My already loose tooth was on its last roots. But through my adrenaline I managed to stay in the game." Although Jack didn't score, Ryan Hoerner scored his first field goal, which was a 3-pointer.

•The rivalry between Chesaning and Corunna is always intense, and this year was no exception as the Indians faced the Cavaliers on our home court. Fans packed the gym, along with radio announcers, tv camera crews, and newspaper photographers. It was a game of runs. In the third quarter the Indians were on fire as they outscored Corunna 28-18 and appeared to have control of the game. Corunna came back in the fourth quarter but the Indians were too much, defeating their MMC rivals 77-71. "This was a turning point in the season," said Ryan Brady. "It was a big win and an emotional win," said Derek Hill. "It was the most exciting varsity game that I played this year," he added.

•On February 20 the Indians traveled to the Ovid-Elsie gym to battle it out again. Mike Skodak came off of the bench to hit three out of five three pointers. The Indians were down by nine and the three pointers brought them to a tie. Mike's efforts were not enough though as the Indians lost 64-63.

THE BOYS HOOP IT UP

•"I got elbowed in the eye by Gene Bonner. I was getting ready to get a rebound and Gene comes flying in from no where and rips down a rebound and cracks me in the eye. I was bleeding all over I had to get eight stitches," said Jeff James.

•The J.V. Indians contest against St. Johns was a fast paced game with many fouls. At the end of the first quarter the teams were tied, then St. Johns decided to pour it on. "They passed and forced turnovers on us, which resulted in points for them," said Dan Morris. After an outstanding quarter by St. Johns, the Indians went into the locker room down by 17 points. "Cut the lead piece by piece," said coach Brent Molnar. This turned out to be very good advice. Jeff James and Garret Mishler came up with some big boards. Zach Chludil and Anthony Turner racked up the points. "The tables were turning and our press frustrated the Redwings," said Dan Morris. "Anthony Turner turned it around for us with his 34 points," said Josh Malkaski.

•"Our season was kind of crazy because our coach didn't care about our record, but we all did," said Tyler Danek. The freshman Indians won a close game against New Lothrop in the closing moments. They also had a decisive win over Montrose. "In these two games everybody played their roles and we had two great wins," said Tyler. Though the players were thrilled with the wins, their coach, Bob Tuuri, was more interested in teaching them the fundamentals of the game.

•"I think the "A" team's best game was against Alma," said Jordan Springer. "The first time we played them we lost in Alma. When they came to our court we dominated the game by owning the boards." The team improved vastly from the beginning of the season. " The coach expects us to practice hard," said Jordan, "because we are the bottom rung. If we weren't practicing hard he sent us home."

•"I remember the Saginaw Valley State University tournament. We hadn't been doing very well at the Saturday tournaments. I don't know what got into us but at this particular tournament we all played well. We set everything up, covered well, and didn't let anything hit the floor. We returned home with second place and a smile on our faces," said Robin Rodriguez. "The day was fun because we played as a team the entire time," said Meagan Soukup.

•At the SVSU tournament, the team members were all hanging out watching our prospective competition before the Semi Finals. "We all got an urge to jump on the high jump mat," said Krystal Weisenberger. "When we jumped on it, Renae James jumped onto a pile of wet apple cores. We all started laughing because Renae's uniform was spotted with apple juice."

•The J.V. players were at the Ionia Tournament and were playing one of the better teams. "We weren't playing very well that game because we do that sometimes," said Melissa Giesken. "We were behind nine to zero. We took a time out and coach was giving us a talk and asking us if we wanted to win the game. We went back out there and just started playing as a team. We were scoring and they weren't. The game was close at the end. At first we were ahead, and then they were ahead. We finally held the lead and won the game."

•For the first time since wrestling was reinstated four years ago, the Indians did not come in last in the conference. They placed eighth out of ten schools. In the first meet of the year they tied Essexville-Garber, which later went on to be ranked in the state. After that meet, the team lost four wrestlers. A few others dropped out during the season, causing the team to lose points in certain weight classes due to forfeits.

•"When we were at Ovid-Elsie, our coach gave a wrestler a hot toothpick," said Sam Martinez. "After touching it, he rubbed his eye. Then he started screaming and yelling 'my eyes, my eyes.' While squinting and screaming, he ran to the bathroom to wash out his eyes."

•After a Durand meet a freshman, who shall remain anonymous, had a cold, so some "helpful" upperclassmen wrestlers convinced him to rub some Ben Gay on his upper lip. He did, and after he realized what a big mistake he made, he started running around the locker room looking for a sink. After he tried to wash it off, but it didn't work so he had to let it wear off.

•At parents night against St. Johns CHS was down by three points with one match to go. Brock Harger pinned his opponent in a Cheeseburger, a really painful hold. The joke for the next week was to tell the freshman wrestlers to ask the guy Brock pinned if he wanted fries with that Cheeseburger.

•The cheerleaders earned a repeat state championship at Grandville High School on March 7 after having won their Region at Ovid-Elsie High School on February 28. Last year the girls were the first sport's team to ever win a Michigan High School Athletic Association State Championship.

•Kellie Weisenberger said, "I remember before we went to cheerleading camp, the JV team members were friends, but not good friends. There were just little cliques of friends instead of one team. But, by the last night of camp, we all bonded. We stayed up until 3:00 in the morning just talking and getting to know each other. Now, we work as one team instead of a bunch of little groups." The cheerleaders spent four days at C!M camp, as they have done for the past several years. Both the Varsity and Junior Varsity teams participated in the second ever UCA stunt camp.

•The cheerleaders first competition was at Ovid-Elsie. Tosha Korf said, "This was my first year of competitive cheerleading. At my first competition, I was so nervous that I stared at a wrestling sign and memorized every year that the wrestler's won." The cheerleaders started off their season with a win.

•The cheerleaders had their second undefeated season. "It felt great always being on top," Tara Westfall explained. "It took a lot of hard work, but every minute was worth it!"

•"Since my sophomore year," Karlye Gross explained, "we have had 16 consecutive regular season wins." After two undefeated seasons the cheerleaders have had lots to cheer about.

Life of the Party

What do edible underwear, a Camelot certificate, calendars, and a water weenie have in common? They were all gifts given at this year's annual Yearbook/Journalism staff Christmas Party. The party is hosted by Mrs. Shaw. This year the inclement weather kept some people from attending. Andrea Amman said, "Anne and I were trying to get ready to go to Mrs. Shaw's party after work. I drove and by the time we got near the Irish Pub, we couldn't see the road. We decided to go back home. I decided to get off the highway. I tried to stop but fishtailed and another car was coming right toward us. It took us twice as long to get home as it usually does." Despite the weather, about 15 people braved the storm to enjoy a night of food, folks, and fun!

Everyone in attendance was able to enjoy subs, snacks, games, and of course, the Greedy Gift Exchange.

Mandalyn Odenbaugh said, "I already knew what Michelle had brought to the party for the greedy-gift game. It was a Calendar with these little kids dressed up. I thought it was really cute and I wanted it! When I drew number 13 out of the hat, (the highest number available) I was sure that the calendar was mine. Then Janee DeLong took it. When my turn finally came, I snatched the calendar back from Janee. Janee ended up getting money instead. Overall I think everyone was happy with his gift."

Anndrea Zoellner had a hard time keeping a gift for herself. She said, "Every time I opened a gift, someone took it from me. First I had a cow poster, which Mrs. Shaw's daughter took from me. Then I had a Jeopardy calendar that Nick Wasmiller took from me. Then I had glow in the dark stars that Rachel Rehmann took from me. I finally ended up with the present that Angie Fielbrandt brought as a dare, which was edible underwear!"

When asked about the dare Angie said, "Rachel Hollenback and I were in Spencers one day when she dared me to buy the underwear for the yearbook party. I was really embarrassed to bring them, but I was just happy that Ms. Shaw didn't receive the present," Angie said. Needless to say, Angie was at the top of the gift-giving list.

Other people were wiser with their gift selections. Josh Wiskup chose candy, the gift he brought to the party, just to be safe.

After the gift exchange the games continued. Catch Phrase seemed to be the hit game of the party, though Taboo was a favorite of Nick Wasmiller and Cristin Cramer. "Cristin and I play Taboo a lot with our friends. We had just played it three days before the party and we had some of the same cards, one was stamp. Earlier Tammy Tomac and I were partners—she gave the clue Elvis, and I got stamp. So when we played at Mrs. Shaw's party, Cristin said Elvis and I yelled stamp!" Nick said.

Other organizations enjoyed Christmas parties at school. Choir members had their party the day before break. People brought in food and they just relaxed after their busy Christmas concert season. The FFA found time to party in Mr. Kovach's room during Seminar.

Dawn Kuhl's acting skills were proved to be very convincing when she got stopped by the police with questions of the toilet papering. Dawn just told him she had seen two girls around the corner and she was headed to friend's house.

CLOSE SHAVE. The Art club displays their Halloween creations. Faces with all sorts of expressions and even Jack-o-lanterns that were carved into Halloween scenes could be found in the art room. Sweet Arts

The Art Club helped CAPA create the scenery and props for January's dinner theater production "Man of La Mancha." The club had to not only complete an entire brick wall for the background, and four other backdrops, they also took on the task of assembling three knight costumes. About 12 students helped on the artwork after school and during Ms. Hautamaki's prep period. Some took armor home over Christmas break.

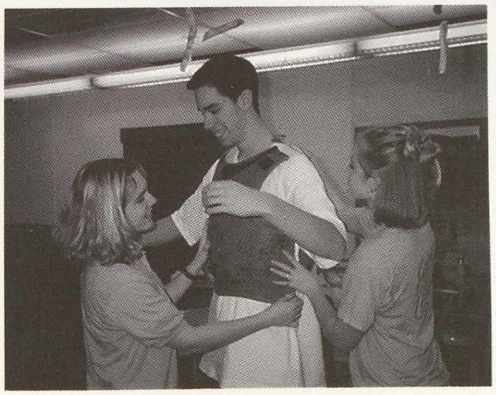
The armor was prefabricated, made of vacuform plastic. Each armor had to be painted and then cut out and fit to the person. Velcro was then attached for quick and easy changes.

"Cristin Cramer and I put off painting a knight costume until the last day of vacation," said Kristy Huber. "When we finally did it, it was in my freezing cold basement and by the end we were just globbing on the paint to get it done."

The shields were made out of broken mirror tiles, explained Ms. Hautamaki. "We glued them on plywood and grouted in between."

The students painted several backdrops, including a bedroom, a landscape, and a courtyard scene. "The material absorbed the paint so it was hard," said Kari Chludil, who worked on the sky using a technique called dry brushing. "It's different doing a project that is so large," said Kari.

In October the Art Club carved pumpkins. "We had to make a realistic face on a pumpkin," said Matt Palacio. "We had to shave the outer layer of the pumpkin off first."



J. Shaw

YOU'RE IN THE ARMOR NOW! Cristin Cramer and Kristy Huber size the prefabricated armor to leading man Travis Birr. Travis played the role of Don Quixote in CAPA's "Man of La Mancha." The Art Club painted armor, made shields, and painted several backdrops.

Helping Hands

The National Honor Society began the year with a record-setting blood drive, on October 15 and 16. With 144 people donating blood, and 57 of those being new donors, it broke the record for the blood drives taking place at that time of the year.

The next activity planned was the induction ceremony, where a record 53 nominees became official members. When added to the old members, there are a total of 86 members of the NHS. Local business woman Sally Schultz, owner of Sarah's Attic, spoke at the ceremony.

In December the NHS combined efforts with the Student Council for the toy drive. The toys, they were taken to the CAER Center, and distributed to needy families in the Chesaning area.

The Salvation Army brought a kettle to Jim's IGA so that NHS members could participate in bell-ringing. Other members helped the Salvation Army sort food donations for Christmas. Nick Wasmiller said, "We helped sort cans into different categories for area families that needed the extra food for the holidays. On the trip there. Megan Canze was told the wrong spot to go. So, when we finally figured out where to go, Megan had to lead us there. She was driving around 60 mph in a 35 mph zone. Of course, all of us had to keep up with her because we had no idea where we were going. I was third in line behind Megan and Tammy Tomac, and behind me was Mark James. As we weaved in and out of traffic, I looked up to see that I had just gone through a yellow light. Kevin Gross and I laughed really hard because Mark was way behind us. Just when we thought we had lost him, Mark ran through the red light. He wanted to keep up with us!"

The next morning some of the kids went for a walk because they were sick of waiting for the National guard to come. They found a spot for authorized vehicles only (an emergency turn around). They decided that this could be their escape. The only problem was the fact that four feet of snow was in their way. Being the creative jazz musicians that they are, they came up with a plan.

''First Pam our bus driver walked down with us to the turn around to see if it would be possible to go through. After she decided that it could possibly work, we all headed back to the bus to get our escape tools. We used music stands, symbols, buckets and anything else we could find to dig ourselves out with,'' said Megan Soukup.

They were successful in their approach to dig a path to free the traffic from its exhausting wait to be rescued. The bus driver directed vehicles through the path. To their surprise, it was working. The truth had finally come as to whether or not the bus would make it through, too. With careful instructions from everyone the bus was set free and they were all heroes. Despite the ''minor'' complication with getting stuck for 15 hours, they finally reached New York City after being on the charter bus for a total of 30 hours.

Band Repeats as State Champs

Two-Timers!

What do you call a group of kids who share the same talents, work hard, and have fun all at the same time? Champions to say the least. The Marching band came in and went out with pride.

The road to the second State Championship started at band camp at Central Michigan University during the last week of July. This is a week full of hard work and bonding. It's the time where new members are initiated in some way and the freshmen and a few eighth grade members are taken under the wing of the upper classmen. Band and guard members wake up at 6:00 a.m. and head off to practice. For most of the week the band learns and memorizes their music and marching sets. Then they put it together on the practice field. The colorguard starts with their early morning basics and later they learn the work for the show. Gradually the two come together, correcting and perfecting any mistakes the staff points out. They accomplish all of this with breaks only for water, lunch and dinner, then it's back to the practice field. Although the week was full of exhausting workouts, sore feet, blisters, sun burns, tan lines, sweat, rashes, heat stroke, strained muscles, etc., it did have its fun points.

"My first year as drum major was a lot of fun. I was really scared when I tried out for it because my friends were trying out with me. After I got drum major I would often get confused. The biggest problem we had was this thing called a long ranger and I was the one who had to carry it around. That thing is reall heavy and annoying!" said Jennifer Fish.

The band members got creative and decorated their rooms for the week. "During band camp Tim Mocny, Todd Kukulis, Matt Moore and I all stayed in a room together," said Chris Zoellner. "When we got there, there were two beds and three mattresses. Just a little bit of a problem, I think. We asked the clerk at the desk to get us another bed and another mattress. She took us to the second floor and said we could take a couple mattresses for each of us because the beds wouldn't fit through the door. We decided that a couple mattresses just wasn't enough so throughout the next few days we kept hauling more and more mattresses up from the second floor to the fifth floor. By the end of the week we had 31 mattresses piled on the floor and a bunch of pillows. We had to take all of the mattresses back down at the end of the week but that was even more fun becuse we rode them down the stairs. We even got it on tape!" said Chris.

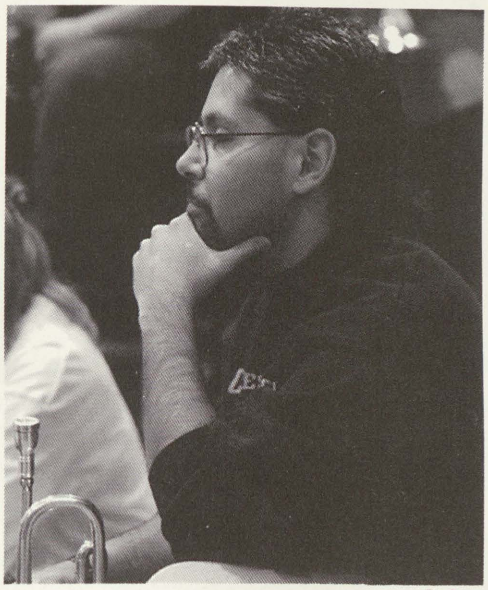
During their limited free time, band members had the privilege of going to the 7-11 for some snacks, going to the Rose Arena for a dip in the pool, or just hanging around. During the evening they had a sing-a-long, skit night, talent contests and the colorguard did their shows that they wrote by themselves to a piece of music they picked out.

On the Thursday night of band camp the seniors went to Matt Beery's grandpa's farm for the annual Senior Night. "We had a lot of fun this year. We mainly roasted marshmallows, told stories by the fire and reminisced," said Jill Amman.

Many seniors say the most memorable moment of Senior Night was when Randall Frye got hit by an orange. Chris Zoellner said, "Jacob Hughes, Tim Mocny and I were shooting stuff from a three-man slingshot. We were just shooting little things like rocks and firecrackers. We wanted to shoot something more interesting and a little bigger. Jacob said we should try an orange. We wanted something to hit and that's when we saw the tractor."

"Matt Beery, Ryan Tarrant and I were looking at a tractor trying to see what kind it was," Randall explained. "Then I felt this thing hitting my back."

Chris continued, "Jacob and Tim aimed. I just let the orange go. Since it was dark, we couldn't see the people standing by the tractor. We heard the 'woosh' and then a loud 'whap!' Then we heard a blood-curdling scream and another loud 'thud.' That's when Randall hit the ground. Ryan Tarrant started screaming that Randall was hit by a porcupine!"



D. Jones

BOSS OF THE BAND. Mr. Taton has been the director of the middle school and high school bands for seven years. He currently attends Central Michigan University where he will receive his Master's degree after the completion of this semester. "I've been looking forward to this for the last three years," said Taton.

Randall finished the story by saying, "I had a big welt on my back and I couldn't sleep on it for a week!"

Finally band camp came to an end with a performance for parents and other bands. "At band camp our goal was to be compared to the top bands in the State not just in flight IV and now we are!" said Megan Soukup.

After band camp the practices continued. "Tim Koski was late to every Saturday practice. So the trombone section got together one Saturday morning before practice and went to Tim's house. We all made breakfast and ate it there without him knowing. When he woke up we made sure to get him to practice on time," said Tim Newman.

As the band marched further into its season, the show entitled "Adventures in Time: The Music of Stan Kenton" was ready to perform at their first show, the Chesaning Invitational. They had a score of 66.60, though they were unable to receive a place because they were an Exhibition Performance. After that the band was off to a first place streak scoring a 64.85 taking all the caption awards for Best Winds, Best Marching and manuevering, Best Auxilliary and Best Percussion, along with their first place trophy at the Linden Invitational. One of the biggest honors the band received was a divison one rating at the Bands of America Toledo Regional Championships, also taking the caption award for Outstanding General Effect making them the Class A Regional Champions! Later that evening they got to perform the show again opening for the top bands in Exhibition.

"It was such a great honor to perform for a second time in Toledo. Normally there's not a huge crowd because we were Class A and we performed early in the day. It was the absolute best feeling to have so many people watching and cheering for us," said junior Drum major Megan Soukup.

The Michigan Invitational was just another accomplishment. With a score of 77.45 the band again took first place with all captions. At the Plymouth Invitational they received their highest score yet, setting a new school record. With all caption awards and a score of 86.95 the band took home another first place trophy.

The next move was on to the State Championships at the Pontiac Silverdome. Despite the nerves, excitement, and injuries, the band had a great performance. They got the reward when the announcer said, " . . . and taking first place with a score of 87.95 receiving caption awards for Best Winds, Best Marching and Maneuvering, Best Auxiliary and Best Percussion, the 1997 State Champions, the Chesaning Marching Indians."

Late that night, as the band traveled back into town on the busses, they found a big surprise that had been waiting for them ever since they were announced the 1997 State Champions. Many businesses on the main street heard of the great victory and wanted to show their support by putting up signs congratulating the band for their great accomplishment.

"I knew by the end of band camp that we would be State Champions again," said Mr. Taton, "and we were."

The season came to a close at the BOA National Championship in Indianapolis, Indiana. The band took charter buses and stayed in Lee's Inn. They had the entire hotel to themselves.

"The parents hung up the Chesaning Marching Band banner across the entrance so when we walked into the hotel, it hung over us," said Tina Danek.

Besides the cold and snowy outdoor practices during their stay in Indiana, some members of the band entertained themselves in very amusing ways.

"B.J. Springer and I made a movie about bath and facial soap. It was fun because we had the whole hotel to do it in," said Tim Newman.

Some girls also got creative and decided to toilet paper everytyhing that was in their room.

"I guess since I was in the room at the time, they decided to toilet paper me too," said B.J. Springer.

They also gift wrapped their bed using instruments, toilet paper, uniforms, stuffed animals, etc.

Besides the fun that they all had during the three day, four night stay, there was work as always. The band had to practice out in heavy snow that got them and their instruments wet. Needless to say they didn't practice outside long because they didn't want to damage their instruments.

The time finally came for them to perform in Preliminaries. Although their performance wasn't what they had expected it to be, they still got a division one rating.

"I can honestly say that this has been the most rewarding year for Marching band," said Sarah Bublitz, "As head drum major, I am extremely proud of every single member because I have been able to see people improve not only this year, but for the last three years. I am really going to miss it because there is so much more to band than the outward appearance of it. What I mean is that the real meaning of band is being around the people and working together for one goal."

D.L. Jones

FRESHMAN FRIENDS. Jennifer Colston gets a friendly congratulations kiss from Jacklyn Macek after finding out that their hard work throughout the season really paid off at State Finals when they took first place!

Tim Newman said that the thing that most stands out in his mind was the Toledo performance. "It was funny watching how people were acting before we went on. Everyone was acting different. Some people would give each other hugs three times saying good luck because they were so nervous. I just laughed."

Some people might think that another terrific season would bring nothing to the Marching Indians but the satisfaction of accomplishing such an ambitious goal. For a few members that was the case, but to the senior members of the band, it meant much more.

"For me marching has been my best high school experience," said Molly Stover. "I'm not sure how long I will remember those long, hard practices but I know that I will always remember the people and the friends that I made. Through all the practices, competitions and the time we spend together, marching band really gives us a chance to get to know the people that makes the band so special. I think that I have learned something very important from this whole experience that I will take with me forever. In any activity in life, take time to get to know the people because they're what really matter."

Choir Students Perform at Carnegie Hall

New York New York

Three choir students, one CHS choir graduate, and choir director Mrs. Betty Richter traveled by train to the Big Apple in June to perform at Carnegie Hall. The program was sponsored by Midway Productions, wich was responsible for bringing a number of studnets from across the country to New York City for this special production.

Participants in the event were Julianna Fischer, Jenni Cunningham, Ryan DeHues, and '96 graduate Esther Borrego. After two lengthy rehearsals, they performed Shubert's Mass in G and Mozart's Regina Coeli along with students from Wisconsin and North Carolina. Even director Mrs. Richter was part of the large group of singers who participated. "As a dicector I don't get to sing much myself, so it was wonderful," said Mrs. Richter.

"It was incredible," agreed Ryan DeHues. "You could just stand on stage and imagine all the famous musicians who had performed there—Frank Sinatra, Perry Como, The Beatles!"

"Carnegie Hall was very beautiful," added Julianna. "It was more tall than it was wide."

The pieces they performed were very demanding vocally. "It helped me prepare for singing at my sister's wedding," said Jenni.

During their stay in the city, the students were treated to a dinner cruise along with the other performers. They saw the Statue of Liberty. They also went to Staten Island, Empire State Building, and Rockefeller Center. They attended a performance of the musical "Rent." "Seeing it made me realize things such as drug use, homelessness and AIDS are really out there," said Jenni.

The students got up early one morning to stand outside the studio where the Today Show is taped. "We were lucky to get as close as we did," said Julianna, whose brother saw her on television.

Jenni's overall impression of the city was that it was "busy, loud, and it smelled bad!"

LOTS O' LITTLE LIGHTS

The streets and businesses were all aglow during the candlewalk, casting a festive appearance throughout the town. The 15th annual Christmas Candlewalk wowed record crowds with more than 18,000 lights.

Community

With just a glance the teamwork in our community is visible. During the Candle Walk and Christmas Glow, and especially Showboat Week, adults and students alike can be observed working together. During the Candle Walk and Christmas Glow you may notice yourself gazing down the boulevard admiring the thousands of illuminating lights. It is a sight that you'll have to see to believe. The small town effect is transformed before your eyes into an exciting town with the image of city life. Even though we may appear to be just any small community, we are often in the public eye.

LET IT SHINE

Erica Haney, an eight year old visitor, from Vernon joyfully walks along the candle-lit streets of the town. She displays a little holiday cheer by purchasing a candle of her own to help light the way.

O' SAY CAN YOU SING?

The members of the choir helped spread Yuletide cheer during the Candlewalk by singing Christmas carols. They made their way through the candle-lit streets on a flat bed trailor.

1. Italian fashion designer Gianni Versace was gunned down in front of his Miami home by alleged serial killer Andrew Cunanan. Cunanan later took his own life as police closed in after an extensive manhunt. 2. Time magazine selected Andrew Grove, chairman and CEO of Intel, as its 1997 Man of the Year. He was the person most responsible for the astounding "growth in the power and innovative potential of microchips." 3. In an effort to save Apple, cofounder Steve Jobs struck a deal with its number one competitor, Microsoft. The agreement gave Jobs some time to rescue the company, while the Microsoft Chairman, Bill Gates, became part owner of Apple after buying $150 million in stock. 4. Tamagotchi gave kids a taste of responsibility. Much like the real thing, these virtual reality pets needed everything from attention, to food, to sleep. Without this care, the pets would misbehave, get fat, or even expire. 5. Hot Wheels released its "miniature" version of the Sojourner Mars Rover, complete with Pathfinder spacecraft and lander. Kids and toy collectors sent sales soaring. 6. With increased reading awareness on television due in large part to Oprah Winfrey's book club, and the rise of espresso-serving bookstores, Americans experienced a kind of reading renaissance. 7. People magazine released its first issue of Teen People, with Party of Five's Jennifer Love Hewitt on the cover. The first issue included articles about what's hot in fashion, a behind the scenes look at the music group Hanson, and photo flashbacks of Brad Pitt. 8. Beanie babies sent children and parents running to the toy store. These cuddly little creatures were must-haves for kids of all ages. Retired beanies, like Peanut the Elephant, increased enormously in value. 9. The Hale-Bopp Comet returned to view 4,200 years after its last visit. In many areas, the comet was visible with the naked eye. The comet's next appearance should be in the year 4397. 10. In a re-match in May, IBM's chess playing machine, Deep Blue, defeated world champion Russian Garry Kasparov. 11. It could be worn with or without a mustache and was popular among teens and movie stars like Keanu Reeves and Josh Brolin. • Riverdance, based on traditional Irish step dancing, played to packed houses in the United States and Australia. Its soundtrack stayed on the Billboard's World Music charts for more than a year. • Barbie received a make-over that included a breast reduction and a more realistic waistline. • The Federal Communications Commission cleared the way for high-definition digital television, giving audiences a sharper image and CD quality sound. • America Online took over CompuServe's 2.6 million members to make AOL number one in the online industry. On a typical day AOL subscribers logged on 16.7 million times. • In a Newsweek Poll, 89% of teens used computers at least several times a week.

1. The beleaguered Russian Space Station Mir had a difficult year as one catastrophe after another occurred. American astronaut Michael Foale calmly handled a series of potentially life-threatening problems during his stay on Mir. At one point the station collided with an out-of control resupply ship. Russians and Americans waited anxiously as Foale and the Russian crew struggled to stabilize the station and repair the damage. 2. John Glenn, the first American to orbit the earth in 1962, is going back into space October of 1998. At 76, his 10-day mission will help in the study of the common effects of aging and space travel. 3. NASA's two-foot-by-one foot, $25 million rover Sojourner became the first vehicle to roam the surface of another planet. TAKE ANOTHER LOOK

During one of their trips to Lansing Anders Birch uses his trick photography to make Matt Hoover look like he is leaning against a building. "We took Anders to Lansing to help him learn about Michigan," said Matt.

One Final Look

Though the class of '98 was seen for the last time together as a group, and though the year has passed, we've all witnessed many changes in ourselves and others. Each of us has explored new things. We have taken this year to examine ourselves and to envision our futures. So here we are, ready to seek new information, to scan new horizons, and to perceive things in a whole new way. You may be ready to focus on the future, but don't even blink. Take one final look!

LOOKING IN

Heather Briggs dissects a baby pig in Mr. Winkler's Human Biology Class. The students had to dissect the pigs to find the different parts of their body, like the esophagus. Mr Winkler got the pigs from a college where the moms were killed and the fetuses taken out. "I thought it was cool, I liked it," said Heather.

LAST BREATH

Jennifer Walker and Rod Solis practice doing CPR and rescue breathing in their law enforcement class at C.O.C. Students in the class had to be able to do CPR in order to pass.

BACKWARD GLANCE

Alicia Jeffers takes a final look at the school at the end of the school day. The day ends at 2:15; the next day will begin at 7:40. Someday the time will come when the routine will change. Appreciate today. Don't be afraid to take a backward glance.
